NEW THEATER FORCES ROUT CHURCH PEOPLE

With Efficient Aid of Six Aldermen—Famous St. John's Church-Cohen's Theater Proposition at Last Disposed of—Attorney Merritt Attacks Sidetrack Legislation.

The forces back of George Cohen's Wall street theater project put to rout the city churches when the common council, after many months' delay, finally defeated the ordinance proposed by Alderman Purvis prohibiting the erection of a theater within 200 feet of any church in Kingston by a vote of 6 to 5 at the regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening at the city hall. The Purvis ordinance had been prepared by Attorney Howard Chipp, counsel for St. John's Church, alongside of which edifice the theater will be built. The vote was registered as follows:

In Favor of Theater.

Wright J. Smith of First ward, Robert McKittrick of Second ward, John A. Fischer of Seventh ward, Peter A. Kullman of Eighth ward, Samuel S. Brown of Tenth ward, John E. Hull of Twelfth ward.

In Favor of Church.

George Schick of Third ward, George A. Leverich of Fifth ward, Edward N. Parish of Sixth ward, Howard J. Shults of Ninth ward, James W. Purvis of Thirteenth ward.

The Absentees.

The two absentees from the meeting were Henry J. Marquart of the Fourth ward and William H. Connelly of the Eleventh ward.

Battle Clouds Appear.

Before the city fathers met the council chambers at the city hall began to fill with the opposing forces, but while in the past the church forces had outnumbered the theater following that was reversed for many of the local men interested in the theater project were present and also George Cohen, who made his first appearance at a meeting of the city fathers.

Brown Starts Something.

The first skirmish in the church-theater battle was projected when Alderman Brown, chairman of the laws and rules committee, introduced a resolution and ordinance that was identical with an ordinance prepared by Attorney Chipp and presented by Alderman Purvis at the last meeting when it was referred to Alderman Brown's committee to report at the April meeting, with the exception that instead of prohibiting the erection of a theater within 200 feet of any church the last clause read that no theater should give a performance on a Sunday without a special permit.

Aldermen Wanted to Know.

When the resolution was put to a vote the aldermen in favor of the church did not vote and one of them asked that the ordinance be read over.

Attorney F. C. Merritt of the Taxpayers' Association after the Brown ordinance had been read again said that his idea was that the ordinance just read was introduced to sidetrack the Purvis ordinance.

Schick Agrees.

Alderman Schick of the Third ward said that was his idea and was the reason he had voted no. He wanted it distinctly understood, however, that he was in favor of prohibiting Sunday performances in a theater.

Canfield Explains.

Mayor Canfield explained that the Brown resolution had nothing to do with the Purvis ordinance but was simply introduced to fix the position of Kingston as against moving pictures being shown on Sundays.

Resolution is Passed.

After the mayor's explanation all of the aldermen in favor of the churches voted "yes" and the Brown resolution prohibiting movies on Sunday was adopted.

"Nigger in Woodpile."

Alderman Brown then introduced a resolution that there be three citizens appointed by the mayor to serve as a board of censors of moving pictures and public dances. "That discloses the nigger in the woodpile," said Attorney F. C. Merritt, leaping to his feet, and he went on to explain that if the city fathers passed the Brown ordinance then it would give them an excuse to dodge the responsibility of acting upon the Purvis ordinance as they could then hide behind the Brown ordinance and say that the city now had a board of censors to censor all shows. He closed with saying that if they passed the Brown ordinance they would never fairly meet the Purvis ordinance.

Alderman Leverich Acts.

At this point Alderman Leverich moved to lay the board of censors resolution on the table.

A spectator tipped off Alderman McKittrick to the fact that no one had seconded the Leverich motion, and he called attention to the fact.

"If second it," said Alderman Fischer, jumping to his feet.

When the Leverich resolution to table was put to vote it was carried by a vote of 6 to 5.

IRON RING CLOSSES UPON GERMAN KEY

Allies Fighting Furiously on Three Sides of St. Quentin Where Haig and Nivelle are Advancing Lines in Face of Strong Resistance.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, April 3.—With the great German key position of St. Quentin surrounded on three sides by the Allies, the Germans are struggling desperately to prevent the iron ring from being closed.

Despite this furious resistance the armies of both General Haig and General Nivelle have advanced their lines, and at one point the Entente troops are only a mile and a half from St. Quentin.

German military establishments in and around St. Quentin and the road leading into the stronghold from Origny on the eastern side are kept under heavy artillery fire night and day.

The new positions captured by the French at L'Epine de Dalton, (a shell of high ground south of St. Quentin) and the villages of Dalton, Giffecourt and Cerizy have been organized in spite of German counterattacks and bombardments that lasted all night. From behind the ridges south of Crivillers (captured by the French on Tuesday) guns are throwing shells into the German trenches defending the southern end of St. Quentin.

For the time being the Allies are concentrating on the great "pocketing movement" against St. Quentin, hoping to shake the whole German line by its capture. The British, swinging around the north end of the city, are pushing eastward of Ombignon river.

Count von Reventlow Leads Berlin Opposition to American Policies—People Apathetic and Show Little Excitement at News of Our Entry Into War.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Berlin, April 4.—The great bluff factory across the Atlantic.

That is the name given to the United States by Count von Reventlow in an article in the Deutsche Tageszeitung on the German-American situation.

Count von Reventlow, classed as one of the leaders of the bitter anti-American faction, wrote in a harsh vein against the policies of the American government.

Most of the newspapers hailed calmly the news that President Wilson has asked the American government to declare a state of war between the United States and Germany. Some gave more space to the prospects of peace than the outlook for a new enemy.

The Lokal Anzeiger has given impetus to the peace talk by stating in Tuesday morning's issue that a new peace offer would shortly be made on the initiative of Austria-Hungary. This measure was agreed upon, it was said, at the last big council of the Central Powers.

Firebrands among the editorial writers warn the people that the entry of the United States in the war would prolong the conflict, rather than hasten peace "unless the Central Powers agreed to dishonorable and humiliating terms."

War has made the people apathetic and there was very little excitement over the news that America is lining up with the Entente.

Germany, it is said, has made no preparations to wage war against the United States. It was reported that the Imperial government would not declare war against America. From a source close to the government it is said the ruthless submarine war will continue and that Americans in Germany will be accorded the same treatment as Germans in the United States.

The Frankfurter Zeitung, in analyzing the causes of conflict between the United States and Germany, says:

"They are of two kinds—material and moral. In regard to the first the Americans say: 'We won't allow our very great export trade to the Entente countries to be forbidden.' Prosperity is the word which governs America."

Should Arrest Such Fakers.

A rumor about a young German woman spy being captured at Ashkan with maps of the reservoir concealed in a false bottom of her trunk has been going the rounds of the press of the Hudson Valley. It is a fake pure and simple. Why any spy should go to all that bother when maps of the aqueduct which have been widely circulated for years, in addition to post card pictures of the reservoir can be obtained by anyone, is a question which reflects little credit on the mental calibre of the genius starting this yarn which has been traveling up and down the pipe line since the militia took up police duty there.

CITY IS SUED FOR $17,000

Several Damage Suits Started Against City and are Referred to Corporation Counsel—Other Matters.

Damage suits aggregating $17,265 have been brought against the city of Kingston and were reported by Clerk Doremus at the regular meeting of the city fathers held on Tuesday evening, and all of the suits were referred to the corporation counsel to defend.

Mrs. Mary Brice of Rhinebeck has brought an action to recover $10,000 for injuries sustained by a fall on the sidewalk in front of the Lyric theater on the Strand on February 15.

Mrs. Mathilda Gulickson of No. 26 Snyder avenue lodged a claim for $65 for damages to her furniture when it was transported over Hurley avenue. The damage was caused by the shaking up of the furniture, due to the alleged bad condition of the avenue.

The corporation counsel reported that Louis Goldstein had started an action in county court for $2,000, and that he had filed an answer to the complaint. What the action was brought for is not stated.

Mrs. Cecelia B. O'Reilly has also brought an action against the city to recover $5,200 for crushed stone. This action has been started in supreme court.

Resolutions Introduced.

Alderman Purvis introduced a resolution that the police investigate complaints made against the blasting of the Kingston Granite Tub Works in Wilbur. Referred to public.

Alderman Purvis moved that the board of public works relay retaining walls of the Twaitskill under the property of the John McManus estate. Referred to that board.

Alderman Purvis moved that the New York Central Railroad be requested to place a screen or suitable protection under the Wilbur bridge on Abert street as material dropping from the bridge might injure those passing under it. Carried.

Alderman Purvis moved that the board of public works place an incandescent light on Chapel street between the residence of James Barnett and the chapel. Referred to that board.

Alderman Fischer moved that the board of public works be requested to lay board walk from Ryne street to Wilbur avenue. Referred to that board.

After considering other matters, an account of which will be found in other columns, the council adjourned.

STRONG TONE IN STOCK MARKET

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, April 4.—Although there were numerous recessions in the initial trading in the stock market today, a strong tone was later displayed and at the end of the first fifteen minutes many active issues showed substantial gains over the opening range.

Steel Common yielded to 115 1/4, and then rose to 116 1/4. Baldwin Locomotive and Crucible Steel both made fractional gains. Bethlehem Steel B opened down 1 point at 141 from which it rose to 142 1/2. Utah Copper showed an opening loss of 1/2 at 114 1/4, which was quickly recovered and other copper stocks moved in the same way.

Marine Pfd lost 1/2 at the start at 83 1/4, and then advanced to 84 1/4. Mexican Petroleum dropped 1/2 to 90 1/4, and later advanced to 91. The railway issues moved in the same way. Erie yielded 1/2 at 28 1/4, followed by an advance to 28 3/4.

McMoore, of the Central New England Railroad, who have been since October 13, 1916, investigating the disappearance of merchandise in transit on their lines caused the arrest yesterday by Officers Reynolds of Michael Iannone, shoe repairer, of Saugerties, and Frank Galletta of Glasco on a charge of having stolen goods in their possession the same having been stolen from cars of the Central New England road at Maybrook, N. Y. About 300 pairs of shoes, 25 pairs of four buckie arctics and 4 rolls of cloth were found in possession of the defendants. A brief hearing was held Tuesday evening before Police Justice Childster, Corporation Counsel William D. Brinler appearing for the defendants, who were admitted to bail in the sum of $400 each for a hearing April 11. M. J. Martin appeared for Galletta, Byron L. Davis for Iannone. George F. Kaufman represented the district attorney's office.

SUNKEN NORWICH RAISED TUESDAY

Old Ice King Towed to Hiltibrant's Dry Dock Today for Repairs—Other Navigation Notes in This Vicinity.

Tuesday efforts to raise the Norwich, which sprung a leak and sunk some time ago off Lindsley's dock in Ponckhockie, were successful, and this morning the old Ice King was towed by tugs Rob and Earl to Hiltibrant's dry dock at South Rondout where her hull will be repaired. Big pumps were used to pump the water from the hull and she was kept afloat until this morning. Just how badly her hull is damaged will not be known until she is docked.

Today the tugs Pocahontas and Pratt left Rondout with a big tow for New York.

Tows are running heavy and on Thursday the tugs Baldwin and Arnold will be placed in commission.

LINERS ARRIVE IN BRITISH PORTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, April 4.—The American Line steamer Finland has arrived at a British port, according to cable advices received here today.

The Finland left an Atlantic port March 23, heavily armed. She carried no passengers but had a heavy cargo.

Word was also received here today of the arrival at a British port of the White Star liner Cedric. The Cedric carried no passengers.

West Pointers Cheer News.

Telegraphic instructions were received in West Point Monday evening to prepare for the graduation of the first class, corps of cadets, on April 20. The news was broken to the cadets while they were at supper, and they gave vent to their feeling with rousing cheers.

OFFICIALS URGED TO ORGANIZE UNIT

Home Defense Measures Set Forth by Governor Whitman in Letters to Mayor Canfield, Judge Jenkins and Chairman Hartshorn of the Board of Supervisors.

Final measures for the organization of Home Defense Corps have been taken by Governor Whitman, who has sent letters to the mayors, county judges and chairmen of boards of supervisors in the various counties outlining their duties in organizing Home Defense Committees to co-operate in the enlistment of the new force and in relief work. Governor Whitman's letter to Mayor Canfield is given in full herewith. Mayor Canfield together with Chairman Judge James Jenkins and Chairman Hartshorn, of the board of supervisors, will probably take action within the next twenty-four hours along the lines outlined in the communication, which is as follows:

State of New York
Executive Chamber
Albany
April 3rd, 1917.

From: The Governor.
To: The County Judge, the President of the Board of Supervisors and the Mayors of all cities of your County.

Subject: Organization Home Defense Committee.

1. The Governor requests that the County Judge of your County, the Mayors of cities within your County, and the President of the Board of Supervisors, designate and appoint a Committee of seven members, to constitute the Home Defense Committee of your County, and that you will, as soon as possible after the designation and appointment of the Committee, submit the names of its members and the address which may be established as its headquarters to which future communications in regard to matters relating to home defense in your County may be sent.

2. In order that there may be a complete understanding in regard to the work which such Committee may be asked to undertake, it may be explained that the object of the Committee is to coordinate under an authoritative head the control of the census and inventory of the military resources of the County as well as the direction of other work of military preparation.

3. A desire has been expressed in many localities, to organize home defense corps, with a special view to maintaining order and security in the community. These organizations while under direct authority and control of the Governor, should, in their organization and membership, be subject to supervision and approval by the local Home Defense Committee. That is another field in which the Home Defense Committee will be utilized.

4. In communities where there are organizations of the National Guard and Naval Militia, the Committee will be expected to stimulate recruiting and in every way back up these State organizations, at the same time to encourage enlistment in the Regular Army and Navy, so to give cooperation to any plans of the Federal authorities in connection with the common defense.

5. Other useful work, such as providing relief for the families of those in the military or naval service, investigating applications for assistance, and in general to coordinate the charitable, patriotic and preparedness efforts of the County will naturally have the consideration of the Home Defense Committee of the County. Will you communicate with the other officials mentioned in the first paragraph and arrange a meeting as soon as possible.

CHARLES WHITMAN.

To Have Uniforms.

According to Albany dispatches, these boards are to assist in organizing the Home Defense Corps, and to carry out under an authoritative lead, as one of their first tasks, the census and inventory of the military resources of the county as well as the direction of other work of military preparation.

The Home Defense Corps will be empowered to suppress any local disorders and to guard important plants, bridges, culverts, tunnels and water works. The uniform of the corps will be similar to that of the army and National Guard, with a distinctive symbol. Regulations for organization, drill and discipline are being prepared rapidly.

The adjutant general will formally muster the various units of the corps into the state service as soon as they are recruited and approved by the home defense committees. The membership will be divided into two classes: Class A, citizens between the ages of sixteen and forty-five; Class B, citizens between the ages of forty-five and sixty-four.

Governor May Call Corps.

The Home Defense Corps may be ordered for duty in aid of the civil authorities by the Governor upon request of the Sheriff of a county or the Mayor of a city when the Governor shall learn that there is a breach of peace, tumult or riot. The Governor may order the Home Defense Corps to report to the Mayor, Sheriff or other local officer to perform any other military duty. The members of the corps will be expected to serve without pay or expense to the state except when actually called out for duty on service away from the home station for more than one day, in which case they will doubtless be transported, subsisted and paid at the rate allowed for similar organizations of the National Guard when called in aid of the civil authorities.

The Late Mrs. Alton B. Parker.

To The Editor of The Kingston Freeman.

Sir: I am seeking the hospitality of your columns for a brief tribute to the memory of Mrs. Alton B. Parker—whom it has been my privilege to know for many years.

The one feature most striking in her, as it always is in real men and women, was that she had character, that it always stood out, and that, too, in the most favorable way. She was considerate of others both as to their opinions and their methods of conducting their lives. Although a certain high order of qualified Puritanism of the Dutch kind ran through her life. In everything she did she was herself. She conducted her life in her own way, and at the same time consulted and respected the feelings and the rights of others. She was not, however, much accustomed to emphasize rights either for herself, her family, her sex or people in general, but she did lay stress upon duty, and whether it was to one person or many or to society at large, she was always ready to emphasize this side of life for herself.

If she had been a man she would have been a master of business. She knew how to conduct her family affairs, those that naturally belonged to her, in the fullest sense of the much abused word, efficiency. In this she did things in her own way, but this was the best that could be devised. She was not accustomed to overlook anything that came within the purview of her knowledge or her duty to her home or to others. Unselfish to a degree, she was little inclined to the purely society side of life, so far as its conventionalities were concerned. She performed these with an intelligence that was always in evidence, and yet nothing seemed studied or formal. She would not undertake a thing if she did not know how to do it and to do it right. She was not much given, either for herself or her family, to the good fellow idea. She liked people, but she wanted them to be themselves and not somebody else. She was almost less of an imitator than any woman it has been my privilege through a long life to know and to know well.

Perhaps the most striking feature in Mrs. Parker's life was her keen sense of humor. With little tendency to bitterness or even to criticism she never failed to see the amusing side of human nature as it presented itself to her at every turn. Whether the people who came under her notice were the highest in the land or the humblest, she always saw in them those things that made them human and interesting.

She was the personification of independence and had a positiveness that bordered on obstinacy. No woman better knew her own house and all that it contained or meant from husband down to the humblest or youngest guest. If anybody was allowed to enter her house it was as a friend; she had very little use for people who were or might be enemies or to whom she was indifferent. Although she was an active figure in social, religious and philanthropic life, wherever her lines were cast, she might be termed the old-fashioned domestic woman, devoted first and always to her family—a word which with her had a very comprehensive scope. Few women of character have been privileged to be of more help to their husbands and their families. Whatever places her husband reached she either led or was by his side to do her part. In every one of these relations she was always the same firm, outstanding character, always the helper, always earnest, always independent and full of an initiative that illustrated the very best traditions of her sex.

Very truly yours,

GEORGE F. PARKER.

Peter A. Killman of Eighth ward.

John E. Hull of Twelfth ward.

In Favor of Church.
George Schick of Third ward.
George A. Leverich of Fifth ward.
Edward N. Parish of Sixth ward.
Howard J. Shultz of Ninth ward.
James W. Purvis of Thirteenth ward.

The two absentees from the meeting were Henry J. Macquart of the Fourth ward and William H. Connelly of the Eleventh ward.

Battle Clouds Appear.
Before the city fathers met the council chambers at the city hall began to fill with the opposing forces, but while in the past the church forces had outnumbered the theater following that was reversed, for many of the local men present and also George Cohen, who made his first appearance at a meeting of the city fathers.

Alderman Schick of the Third ward said that was his idea and was the reason he had voted no. He wanted it distinctly understood, however, that he was in favor of prohibiting Sunday performances in a theater.

Alderman Leverich Acts.
At this point Alderman Leverich moved to lay the board of censors resolution on the table.

A spectator tipped off Alderman McKilrick to the fact that no one had seconded the Leverich motion, and he called attention to the fact.

"I second it," said Alderman Schick, jumping to his feet.

"Then the Leverich resolution to table was put to vote it was carried by a vote of 6 to 5."

Chipp Wanted to Know.
Attorney Howard Chipp, who was present, asked why the Brown ordinance was not referred to the laws and rules committee as was the action taken in the Purvis resolution.

Mayor Canfield Explains.
Mayor Canfield explained that there was no rule of the council which made it mandatory for such resolutions as introduced by Alderman Brown to be referred to the laws and rules committee because they were in complete form. He said that the Purvis resolution introduced at the March meeting had been sent to the laws and rules committee at the request of Alderman Purvis and contained in his resolution.

Purvis Ordinance Correct.
Mr. Chipp said that the Purvis ordinance was correct as to form, and he thought action should be taken on it first.

Purvis Clears Deck.
It was at this point that Alderman Purvis cleared the decks for action when he asked that a vote be taken on his ordinance which was in the hands of the laws and rules committee.

Committee Had Not Reported.
Although the laws and rules committee were in possession of the Purvis ordinance as it had been referred to them at the last meeting to report at the April meeting, and although they had prepared no report as to what action they had taken, Alderman Brown, chairman of the committee, made no objection to a vote being taken on the Purvis ordinance which had not been reported out of committee.

Ordinance is Lost.
A roll call on the Purvis ordinance was taken with the result as outlined in the beginning of this chronicle of the defeat of the city churches by the theater forces. At the close of the roll call, President Crane declared the Purvis ordinance "lost."

The city fathers then considered a number of other less important matters, an account of which will be found in another column.

WILL WAR AGAINST CORNERS IN FOODS

Government to Profit by Experience of European Belligerents in Distribution of Supplies—Food Board to be Named.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, April 4.—Quick to profit by the mistakes of European belligerents, the United States government is taking steps today to handle the gravest of war-time problems—the equitable distribution of food supplies when war actually arrives.

The council of national defense, co-operating with its advisory commission of cabinet members, will announce within the next few days the appointment of a "commercial economy board" which will be responsible for food distribution.

Nothing drastic, such as government seizure of supplies, is contemplated for the present at least. The regulation of food and other necessities will be worked on the voluntary plan at first. If it becomes necessary to adopt more stringent measures later the board will be prepared to do so.

Action in this monumental task was hastened by reports reaching government officials that already big speculators are prepared to "corner" certain commodities—particularly in canned goods, which will be in great demand, especially for the army needs. The action was taken to forestall such a move on the part of the speculators, and the officials of the government and the council are confident that they will be able to curb unscrupulous dealers without resort to drastic means.

A tentative plan of action already has been mapped out by the council. Multitudinous details, however, remain to be worked out and until everything is perfected there will be no public announcement.

Full co-operation is being given the Defense Council by the National Council of Women and the National League for Women's Service. The heads of 27 women's organizations are now in Washington. They have given valuable information concerning food matters and will take an active part in suppression of food trafficking.

So hint has come from the council of the probable percentage of the food board. It is stated, however, that its membership will consist of "the best qualified men" in the nation, men who know the inside and outside facts of the food business and its distribution, and men who have the public good at heart.

CITY IS SUED FOR $17,000

Several Damage Suits Started Against City and are Referred to Corporation Counsel—Other Matters.

Damage suits aggregating $17,245 have been brought against the city of Kingston and were reported by Clerk Durems at the regular meeting of the city fathers held on Tuesday evening, and all of the suits were referred to the corporation counsel to defend.

Mrs. Mary Brice of Rhinebeck has brought an action to recover $10,000 for injuries sustained by a fall on the sidewalk in front of the Lyric theater on the Strand on February 16.

Mrs. Mathilda Gullikson of No. 26 Bayview Avenue, brought a claim for $60 for damages to her furniture when it was transported over Horley avenue. The damage was caused by the shaking up of the furniture, due to the alleged bad condition of the avenue.

The corporation counsel reported that Louis Goldstein had started an action in county court for $2,000, and that he had filed an answer to the complaint. What the action was brought for is not stated.

Mrs. Cecelia B. O'Reilly has also brought an action against the city to recover $5,200 for crushed slum. This action has been started in supreme court.

Resolutions Introduced.
Alderman Purvis introduced a resolution that the police investigate complaints made against the blasting of the Kingston Granite Tub Works in Wilbur. Referred to police.

Alderman Purvis moved that the board of public works relay retaining walls of the Twaitskill under the property of the John McManus estate. Referred to that board.

Alderman Purvis moved that the New York Central Railroad be requested to place a screen or suitable protection under the Wilbur bridge on Abel street as material dropping from the bridge might injure those passing under it. Carried.

Alderman Purvis moved that the board of public works place an incandescent light on Chapel street between the residence of James Barnett and the chapel. Referred to that board.

Alderman Fischer moved that the board of public works be requested to lay board walk from Ravine street to Wilbur avenue. Referred to that board.

After considering other matters, an account of which will be found in other columns, the council adjourned.

STRONG TONE IN STOCK MARKET

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, April 4.—Although there were numerous recessions in the initial trading in the stock market today, a strong tone was later displayed and at the end of the first fifteen minutes many active issues showed substantial gains over the opening range. Steel Common declined to 15 1/2, and then rose to 16 1/4. Goldwin Locomotive and Crucible both made fractional gains.

Bethlehem Steel B opened down 1 cent at 141 from which it rose to 142 1/2. Utah Copper showed an opening range. Steel Common declined to 15 1/2, and then rose to 16 1/4. Goldwin Locomotive and Crucible both made fractional gains. The railway issues moved in the same way. Erie yielded 1/4 to 28 1/2, followed by an advance to 29 1/2.

ARREST TWO MEN AS CAR BURGLARS

Saugerties Police Co-operate With Railroad Scouts Investigating Theft of 300 Pairs of Shoes from C. N. E. Railway Cars.

Saugerties, April 4.—Special Officers George Hillman and Homer Goodsell, West Shore detectives, Division Special L. A. Pliny and Specials Lord and William G. McMoore, of the Central New England Railroad, who have been since October 15, 1916, investigating the disappearance of merchandise in transit on their lines caused the arrest yesterday by Officers Howard Ricketts and Victor Reynolds of Michael Iannone, shoe repairer, of Saugerties, and Frank Galla of Glasco on a charge of having stolen goods in their possession the same having been stolen from the Central New England road at Maybrook, N. Y. About 300 pairs of shoes, 25 pairs of four buckie hetties and 4 rolls of cloth were found in possession of the defendants. A brief hearing was held Tuesday evening before Police Justice Chiemster, Corporation Counsel William D. Drimmer appearing for the defendants, who were admitted to bail in the sum of $400 each for a hearing April 11. Al. J. Martin appeared for Galla, Byron I. Davis for Iannone, George F. Kaufman represented the district attorney's office.

Old Ice King Towed to Hiltchbrant's Dry Dock Today for Repairs—Other Navigation Notes in This Vicinity.

Tuesday efforts to raise the Norwich, which sprung a leak and sunk some time ago off Lindsley's dock in Ponakehoeke, were successful, and this morning the old Ice King was towed by tugs Rob and Earl to Hiltchbrant's dry dock at South Rondout where her hull will be repaired. Big pumps were used to pump the water from the hull and she was kept afloat until this morning. Just how badly her hull is damaged will not be known until she is docked.

Today the tug Perchontas and Pratt left Rondout with a big tow for New York.

Tows are running heavy and on Thursday the tugs Baldwin and Arnold will be placed in commission.

LINERS ARRIVE IN BRITISH PORTS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, April 4.—The American Line steamer Finland has arrived at a British port, according to cable advices received here today.

The Finland left an Atlantic port March 28, heavily armed. She carried no passengers but had a heavy cargo.

Word was also received here today of the arrival at a British port of the White Star liner Cedric. The Cedric carried no passengers.

West Pointers Cheer News.
Telegraphic instructions were received in West Point Monday evening to prepare for the graduation of the first class, corps of cadets, on April 26. The news was broken to the cadets while they were at supper, and they gave vent to their feelings with rousing cheers.

OFFICIALS URGED TO ORGANIZE UNIT

Home Defense Measures Set Forth by Governor Whitman in Letters to Mayor Canfield, Judge Jenkins and Chairman Hartshorn of the Board of Supervisors.

Final measures for the organization of Home Defense Corps have been taken by Governor Whitman, who has sent letters to the mayors, county judges and chairmen of boards of supervisors in the various counties outlining their duties in organizing Home Defense Committees to co-operate in the enlistment of the new force and in relief work. Governor Whitman's letter to Mayor Canfield is given in full herewith. Mayor Canfield together with County Judge James Jenkins and Chairman Hartshorn, of the board of supervisors, will probably take action within the next twenty-four hours along the lines outlined in the communication, which is as follows:

State of New York
Executive Chamber
Albany
April 3rd, 1917.

From: The Governor.
To: The County Judge, the President of the Board of Supervisors and the Mayors of all cities of your County.

Subject: Organization Home Defense Committees.

1. The Governor requests that the County Judges of your County, the Mayors of cities within your County, and the President of the Board of Supervisors, designate and appoint a Committee of seven members, to constitute the Home Defense Committee of your County, and that you will, as soon as possible after the designation and appointment of the Committee, submit the names of its members and the address which may be established as its headquarters to which future communications in regard to matters relating to home defense in your County may be sent.

2. In order that there may be a complete understanding in regard to the work which such Committee may be asked to undertake, it may be explained that the object of the Committee is to co-operate with the military authorities in the control of the census and inventory of the military resources of the County as well as the direction of other work of military preparation.

3. A desire has been expressed in many localities, to organize home defense forces, with a special view to maintaining order and security in the community. These organizations while under direct authority and control of the Governor, should, in their organization and membership, be subject to supervision and approval by the local Home Defense Committee. That is another field in which the Home Defense Committee will be utilized.

4. In communities where there are organizations of the National Guard and Naval Militia, the Committee will be expected to stimulate recruiting and in every way back up these State organizations; at the same time to encourage enlistment in the Regular Army and Navy, so to give cooperation to any plans of the Federal authorities in connection with the common defense.

5. Other useful work, such as providing relief for the families of those in the military or naval service, investigating applications for assistance, and in general to coordinate the charitable, patriotic and preparedness efforts of the County will naturally have the consideration of the Home Defense Committee of the County. Will you communicate with the other officials mentioned in the first paragraph and arrange a meeting as soon as possible.

CHARLES WHITMAN.

To Have Uniforms.
According to Albany dispatches, these boards are to assist in organizing the Home Defense Corps, and to carry out under an authoritative lead, as one of their first tasks, the census and inventory of the military resources of the country as well as the direction of other work of military preparation.

The Home Defense Corps will be empowered to suppress any local disorders and to guard important plants, bridges, culverts, tunnels and water works. The uniform of the corps will be similar to that of the army and National Guard, with a distinctive symbol. Regulations for organization, drill and discipline are being prepared rapidly.

The adjutant general will formally muster the various units of the corps into the state service as soon as they are recruited and approved by the home defense committee. The membership will be divided into two classes: Class A, citizens between the ages of sixteen and forty-five; Class B, citizens between the ages of forty-five and sixty-four.

Governor May Call Corps.
The Home Defense Corps may be ordered for duty in aid of the civil authorities by the Governor upon request of the Sheriff of a county or the Mayor of a city when the Governor shall learn that there is a breach of peace, tumult or riot. The Governor may order the Home Defense Corps to report to the Mayor, Sheriff or other local officer to perform any other military duty.

The members of the corps will be expected to serve without pay or expense to the state except when actually called out for duty on service away from the home station for more than one day, in which case they will doubtless be transported, subsisted and paid at the rate allowed for similar organizations of the National Guard when called in aid of the civil authorities.

expected to serve without pay or expense to the state except when actually called out for duty on service away from the home station for more than one day, in which case they will doubtless be transported, subsisted and paid at the rate allowed for similar organizations of the National Guard when called in aid of the civil authorities.

The Late Mrs. Alton B. Parker.
To The Editor of The Kingston Freeman.

Sir:
I am seeking the hospitality of your columns for a brief tribute to the memory of Mrs. Alton B. Parker—whom it has been my privilege to know for many years.

The one feature most striking in her, as it always is in real men and women, was that she had character, that it always stood out, and that, too, in the most favorable way. She was considerate of others both as to their opinions and their methods of conducting their lives, although a certain high order of qualified Puritanism of the Dutch kind ran through her life. In everything she did she was herself. She conducted her life in her own way, and at the same time consulted and respected the feelings and the rights of others. She was not, however, much accustomed to emphasize rights either for herself, her family, her sex or people in general, but she did lay stress upon duty, and whether it was to one person or many or to society at large, she was always ready to emphasize this side of life for herself.

If she had been a man she would have been a master of business. She knew how to conduct her own affairs, those that naturally belonged to her, in the fullest sense of the most abused word, efficiency. In this she did things in her own way, but this was the best that could be devised. She was not accustomed to overlook anything that came within the purview of her knowledge or her duty to her home or to others. It is difficult to describe her as a woman, for she was a woman, and she was a woman of the purely social side of life, so far as its conventionalities were concerned. She performed these with an intelligence that was always in evidence, and yet nothing seemed studied or formal. She would not undertake a thing if she did not know how to do it and to do it right. She was not much given, either for herself or her family, to the good fellow idea. She liked people, but she wanted them to be themselves and not somebody else. She was almost less of an imitator than any woman it has been my privilege through a long life to know and to know well.

Perhaps the most striking feature in Mrs. Parker's life was her keen sense of humor. With little tendency to bitterness or even to criticism she never failed to see the amusing side of human nature as it presented itself to her at every turn. Whether the people who came under her notice were the highest in the land or the humblest, she always saw in them those things that made them human and interesting.

She was the personification of independence and had a positiveness that bordered on obstinacy. No woman better knew her own house and all that it contained or meant than she did. She was a woman of the home, and she was a woman of the home. She was a woman of the home, and she was a woman of the home. She was a woman of the home, and she was a woman of the home.

Very truly yours,
GEORGE F. PARKER.

Snakes Sold With Store.
The first snake story of the season comes from Newburgh where a junkman returned with a tale of the purchase of a second-hand stove. He started to break up his buy when at the first stroke of the sledge two big snakes stuck their heads out of the oven. The man counted ten more and abandoned the stove. The town where the incident occurred is a dry town it is said.

The bananas as a dried breadstuf has been used by numerous races for centuries.

Hawaiian Island widows have their departed husbands' names tattooed on their tongues.

The members of the corps will be expected to serve without pay or expense to the state except when actually called out for duty on service away from the home station for more than one day, in which case they will doubtless be transported, subsisted and paid at the rate allowed for similar organizations of the National Guard when called in aid of the civil authorities.

"Well, I see where they are going to build submarine chasers in the Rondout creek," said the friend excitedly as he grasped the street corner politician by the arm and halted him.

"Where did you get that dope?" asked the politician.

"Everybody is talking about it," returned the friend, "and they say that forty of the craft are to be built here for the government."

"Come to think of it," replied the politician thoughtfully, "I think I heard the same story the other day."

"What is there to it?" asked the friend.

"None" of the local boatyards acknowledge that they are building them as near as I can learn," said the politician.

"And then again I heard that there is an inventor living along the upper Rondout creek who is inventing a one-man submarine boat," continued the politician.

"That's just a wild yarn," said the friend.

"It might be so at that," agreed the politician, "but according to rumor, this inventor has been busy for some time, and when he gets his model working O. K. he is going to offer it to the government to use for coast defense work."

"Do you really believe the yarn?" asked the friend.

"No," replied the politician, "I was giving it to you for what it was worth."

"Do you suppose that Germany will try to send submarines over here and try to blow up the capitol at Albany?" was the next query shot by the friend.

"Where did you hear that?" countered the politician.

"In a barbershop," replied the friend honestly.

"You can hear the same thing in any cafe for that matter too," said the politician.

"Do you think it would happen?" queried the friend.

"Judging from what has been occurring," said the politician, "anything might happen, but I hardly think that will."

"Why?" asked the friend.

"We will put guns on the Skillypot and send it out as a submarine chaser," replied the politician with a smile.

"Has the target machine come yet for the police force?" asked the friend, changing the subject abruptly.

"Not yet," replied the politician, "but it is expected to arrive some time in the near future."

"What do you think of it?" asked the friend.

"As I have never seen one," replied the politician, "I hate to express an opinion."

"Do you think it will assist in making the police become experts with their guns?"

"I hope so," said the politician.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Talent is something, but tact is everything. Talent is serious, sober, grave and respectable; tact is all that and more.

DISHES FOR OCCASIONS.

These dishes may offer suggestions to the housewife even if not exactly followed.

Fish a la Vinaigrette.—Boil shad, mackerel or white fish in salted water. When cooked, put into a dish and pour over it two cupfuls of mild vinegar while the fish is hot. When it is cold pour the vinegar into a bowl, add to it two teaspoonfuls of Worcestershire sauce and salt and pepper to taste. Pour all this upon the fish. When ready to serve chop fine two hard-boiled eggs, one small onion, two tablespoonfuls each of parsley and celery finely minced, one boiled beet, and spread this mixture over the fish.

Soft Custard.—Beat two eggs slightly, add to a pint of milk, a half cupful of sugar, an eighth of a teaspoonful of salt and a half teaspoonful of grated lemon peel, or a little nutmeg, cinnamon or a half teaspoonful of any flavoring extract. Mix well and put into custard cups, set them in a pan of hot water and bake until the custard is set. This makes four small custards.

Apricot Blanc Manger.—Soak some dried apricots all night; stew them with sufficient sugar to sweeten them, and then add a cupful to a quart of blanc manger when cooking. Just before this is turned into a mold add two teaspoonfuls of vanilla and serve it very cold with thick cream.

Jam Cake.—Cream a half cupful of butter, add a cupful of sugar; add the yolks of two eggs and two-thirds of a cupful of sour milk to which has been added a teaspoonful of soda. Sift two cupfuls of flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder; add one teaspoonful each of cinnamon, allspice, and cloves with the other ingredients. Then add the beaten whites of three eggs and stir in one cupful of blackberry jam or any other kind of jam. Bake in three layers and put soft frosting for filling in between and on top of the cake.

Salmon Omelet.—Take a large can of salmon, drained and chopped fine; add four beaten eggs, a pinch of salt and a dash of pepper. Mix well and fry by spoonfuls in a little hot fat. Serve on lettuce leaves hot or cold.

NAVAL DISPLAY WORTH SEEING

Kingston Firm Aids United States Navy Department to Secure Recruits by Making a Striking Window Display.

The United States Navy, the first line defense, needs recruits to man the big fighting machines of the country and within a short time 25,000 men will be needed to man the warships already authorized by congress. In the navy the bluejacket aboard the ship has a chance to learn a trade and if he has a trade the navy offers an excellent opportunity. In order to present this fact to local people the navy department has written a letter to the large department stores in the cities throughout the country asking that their co-operation be given in presenting the proposition to local boys who are daily passing the stores.

A letter has been received by the Rose-Gorman-Rose store here asking that one of their windows be devoted to the display which will catch the eye of young men passing the store, and in response the firm had given one of their large windows on North Front street to such a display. From the toy department a host of toy battleships and submarines have been called into active service and form a part of the foreground of the display. The background is a mass of American flags draped about the other objects of the window display.

The members of the firm of Rose-Gorman-Rose have gotten up a most extraordinary display in response to the request of the United States and a number of pictures of the big fighting machines of the country form a part of the display. Cards bearing the inscriptions "25,000 men are needed for your navy now." "During 140 years of splendid achievement the navy has been the first line of defense." "Tomorrow it may be required to protect you from invasion." "You are proud of your navy, now is the time for you to do your part to strengthen it." "Get acquainted with the splendid opportunities the navy offers young men," and similar phrases are a part of the display.

Many young men who might join the navy daily pass the store window and the attractive display made up by the firm will act as a gentle reminder that a call at the nearest navy recruiting station will be service to the country and a benefit to the applicant.

The display has all the merit of ordinary patriotic display, with the additional advantage of accomplishing something of definite assistance. Against the background two Union Jacks symbolic of the navy are draped. At either of these American flags are draped. Across the upper edge of the background extends a border of dark blue crepe paper, edged with red, white and blue, and white stars are cut from cardboard and pinned to the border. Shields of red, white and blue are used at the ends.

The centre-piece of the display is a recruiting poster, borrowed from a recruiting station as were the photographs and calendar in the foreground. At the upper edge of the poster is a unit composed of American eagle and shield with six flags.

EDISON AT WORK ON SUB DESTROYER

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Orange, N. J., April 4.—Somewhere in the low rolling hills of New Jersey the master inventor of America is working today under guard, in the aid of his nation. Thomas A. Edison has been for weeks almost continuously secluded in a laboratory working from eighteen to twenty hours a day with only one assistant.

What Edison is working on no one knows. However, it is known that as head of the Naval Advisory Council, Edison feels that it is his duty to his nation to evolve an effective weapon of warfare which will cope with the submarine. It is generally supposed that it is upon this that the American genius has been continually working for several weeks.

It is long after dark when a little electric automobile winds slowly up the broad drives in Llewellyn Park and "Mr. Edison has called it a day."

Before sunrise the same little machine drives out of Llewellyn Park and "Mr. Edison is off for work again."

Just where the great inventor is at work with his experiments is not known. He is known, however, to have established a laboratory in some hidden spot in the hills that surround his home. Guards are distributed throughout the wooded hills and no one is allowed to enter the region.

CHILD KIDNAPPED AT QUARRYVILLE

Three men in an automobile stopped at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Van Valkenburgh at Quarryville shortly before noon on Tuesday and entering the house practically tore their little granddaughter from the arms of Mrs. Van Valkenburgh, and placing her in the car, sped toward Saugerties.

The kidnapped child was the daughter of Louis Van Valkenburgh, a son who died suddenly in New York city recently. Louis Van Valkenburgh and his wife had separated some time previously and the child's mother resides at Haines Falls. It is not known yet whether she instigated the seizure of the child.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Recital at Holy Cross Church. A musical recital will be given at Holy Cross Church on Tuesday evening, April 10, by H. Norman Taylor, organist of the church. The tickets, which are 25 cents, are now for sale.

A very pleasant surprise party was given Miss Cornelia Van Aken at her home, No. 57 Green street, on Tuesday evening, April 3, by a large number of relatives and friends, in honor of her 17th birthday. The evening was spent with Victrola selections and games and at 10 o'clock the door leading to the dining room was opened and amid the decorations of American flags refreshments were served. The centerpiece was a large birthday cake lighted with seventeen red, white and blue candles. At 12 o'clock the guests departed wishing the hostess many more happy birthdays.

Hasselmann-Dehnhardt.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hasselmann announce the marriage of their son Albert Hasselmann to Miss Hannah Dehnhardt.

C. A. R. to Entertain Wiltwyck Chapter.

At the regular meeting of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., to be held at the chapter house on Thursday, tomorrow afternoon, the Children of the American Revolution will give an entertainment as the program for the afternoon. The hostesses will be Mrs. Ellis and Mrs. Kingman. Arrangements will be completed for co-operation with the Red Cross Chapter in actual work.

Monday Club.

The Monday Club met this week with Mrs. Davis at her home on Johnston avenue. Mrs. Winne had the paper for the day, her subject being "American Art of Today." Not only was the subject most admirably presented, but Mrs. Winne had several illustrations of various forms of American art but also a fine collection of lace made in our American convents. Next week the club will meet with Mrs. Kenyon.

A Delightful Surprise.

A surprise was tendered on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. William Winchell, 738 Broadway, in honor of her niece, Miss Hilda E. Raiche, whose marriage to C. M. Pierson will take place next Wednesday. The affair was in the nature of a miscellaneous shower and more than a score of girl friends of the prospective bride joined in giving a variety of pretty and useful gifts together with their best wishes for her future happiness. An enjoyable evening was passed, games and a social time being followed by refreshments.

Garden Club Hears Profitable Address.

The Ulster Garden Club held its April meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Finch on Pearl street. Following the routine business of the club, George Burgevin addressed those present and there was a large attendance upon "Some Essentials in Practical Gardening," which was so interesting and practical that it will be printed in full in the Freeman later. In addition to the paper, which was highly appreciated, the club made further plans for the school garden work, having secured the assistance of Mr. Service, of the high school, to supervise all of the school garden work. As had been stated before, the flower market which is to be held on the high school grounds on June 25, under the patronage of the Garden Club, will be for the benefit of this school garden work. A pleasant social hour with continued informal discussion of the paper and other matters of interest to the club brought the meeting to a close.

Soiskanishade Club.

The Soiskanishade Club met on Monday as the guests of Mrs. Raynor. Following the roll call of "Dialect Quotations," which were exceedingly amusing, Mrs. Joseph F. Belanger gave a very interesting and altogether delightful paper on "Prominent Humorists." Beginning with J. C. Halliburton better known by his pen name as "Sam Slick," Mrs. Belanger gave a short sketch of the lives of several other humorists, mentioning among the number Baily of the Danbury News, Josh Billings, Artemus Ward, and of our own time, Dunne and Bachelor. Among the more dignified of our American humorists were classified Irving, Holmes and Lowell. The paper closed with ex-president Taft's tribute to Mark Twain. Throughout the paper clever quotations from the various writers were given. The second paper on "New Books" was given by Mrs. Hull. The subject proved to contain unlimited material, including writers of biography, romance, travel, war and childhood. Both papers were carefully prepared and entertaining as well as interesting. Next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Styles on Lafayette avenue.

The Coterie.

The Coterie met on Saturday with Mrs. Ellis. "Detroit" was the general topic for the afternoon. Miss Hale had the first paper on "Detroit, the Dynamic City." Beginning with the founding of the trading posts by Cadillac, the Frenchman, in 1701, Mrs. Hale told of the remarkable growth of the city, largely due to its situation. While usually thought of as only a manufacturing town, the fact was noted that there are 36 fine parks, beautiful buildings, handsome public buildings. Through its numerous manufactures, for many other products than automobiles are made in Detroit, the city has progressed from the 17th place in rank as an industrial city, to 4th place. A fine description was given of the Ford works and all of the enterprise connected therewith. Aaked to a splendid "institution." Considerable time was also devoted to a most interesting account of Charles Freer who went from Kingston to Detroit and there made a fortune which he liberally expended in the interests of art and culture. This excellent paper was followed by a second paper entitled "Goodbye to 'Trading Post,'" given by Miss Deudney, who elaborated upon the fact merely noted in the first paper, of the founding of the post by Cadillac. He received his grant from King

Louis of France, but after the establishment of the post had to contend with much opposition from the Canadian French people. The Indian life, the fur trading and all of the interesting features of general life at the trading post were graphically described by Miss Deudney. At the close of this part of the program, the election of officers took place, resulting as follows: President, Mrs. David Terry; vice-president, Miss Ada Fuller; secretary, Mrs. Patience Fuller; treasurer, Mrs. Ellis. The subject for study for the next year was also chosen, and decided upon as being "South America." Following a delightful social hour, the Coterie adjourned to meet next week with Mrs. Brown.

My Burglary

It Had Farreaching Results

By ELINOR MARSH

I am of an artistic temperament. From my earliest girlhood I had loved beautiful scenes. I took to drawing pictures early and in time became a water color sketcher. In summer time I drove around in a vehicle called a rockaway, drawn by an old horse that had been in my family a long while and in whom I had every confidence.

At night I would sometimes stop at a hotel, sometimes at a farmhouse, and occasionally would place my blankets on grassy ground and spend the night in bivouac.

One evening when I was some miles from a town, which I expected to reach before dark, Bob went lame. Looking about for shelter—for I could not get on with a lame horse—I espied a short distance ahead of me, perched on a ledge, a cottage. It was as artistic a piece of architecture as I ever saw, with its grounds and vines growing over it. Indeed, the tout ensemble constituted a thing of beauty. If I could only be permitted to spend the night there I would be delighted.

I managed to get Bob to the gateway of the place and up a short winding road leading to the house. I was disappointed in not seeing any one about, and as I drew near it occurred to me that the place was unoccupied. The blinds were not closed and there was nothing to indicate that the house was empty. What was it that told me that the place was deserted?

Leaving Bob standing in the roadway, I went to the house and rapped on the front door with a brass knocker. It did not seem to me, if there had been any one within, that those knocks would have sounded so hollow. I listened, but there was no indication of any one stirring. Going around to the rear I failed to see any indication of a living being. There were no chickens, no dog, not even a lonely cat. Only a few flowers in beds near the house that I judged grew without being cultivated. There was a woodshed and some wood in it, but plenty of room for Bob in case I should have to leave him there.

Looking in at a window, I saw a library with a fine broad fireplace and among the furniture a large lounge. The sash was locked, and I went to other windows, but found them locked also. A trellis led to an upper window. It looked easy to climb, and I went up it and found the sash unlocked. I went into a bedroom and down a staircase. The front door was locked and no key, but I opened a side door by turning the latch.

I could understand the fascination of burglary so interested was I in appropriating the premises to my use for the night. There was a zest in temporarily owning this place, so beautiful and yet so desolate, which was enhanced by my having to break into it and learn what there was suited to my necessities.

The next thing was to unharness Bob and give him his supper. Then I went into the house with my lunch box, in which I always kept something and in which I now fortunately had enough to satisfy my appetite. There were cupboards in which eatables might be stored, but they were locked. After eating I lighted a lamp in the library and looked over the books. It was evident that whoever had filled these shelves was a well educated and intelligent person. I have never before come upon a library in which every book had a value. And what surprised me most was that some of the books were up to date. I read till quite late, then, throwing myself on the lounge, put out the lamp and went to sleep.

On awakening in the morning I was astonished to detect the odor of coffee. What did it mean? Was the house, after all, occupied? Had the occupants returned late? I arose and went into the dining room. The table was set for breakfast, but for only one person. Hurrying on, I entered the kitchen. On the range a coffee pot was simmering, and there was a kettle that emitted the odor. A toast rack stood on the range, filled, and a couple of eggs were ready for boiling.

I started to find whoever had come in to apologize for my burglary, and, not finding any one on the ground floor, went cautiously upstairs. The bedroom doors were open as I had left them the night before, but no one was in any of them. The house was as free from any person except myself as it was when I broke into it.

I went downstairs again, looked about me and listened. There was no sound save the simmering kettle in the kitchen.

Was I in my right mind? Was I asleep and dreaming? Was I enacting a play for a movie show? But the odor of the coffee, the remembrance of the toast and the eggs, to say nothing of a dish of radishes and some tempting butter on the breakfast table, overpowered wonder, and, going into the kitchen, I boiled the eggs, and, removing them and the post to the breakfast table, I sat down to eat. My grace was:

"Fairly godmother, I thank thee." "Never did a breakfast taste so delicious. There was no great variety, but there was all I wanted. After I had eaten I removed the dishes to the kitchen, poured water from the kettle and proceeded to wash them."

"Fairly godmother," I said aloud, "do me one more favor. Tell me to whom I am indebted for my lodging and especially for the delicious breakfast I have eaten."

"The obligation is all on the other side," said a voice behind me.

Turning quickly, I saw a man standing outside the kitchen, his arms resting on the window sill. I stood looking at him, not knowing what to say to him. He was an intellectual and refined looking man about thirty years of age. A certain sadness was stamped upon his features, but a change appeared to be breaking over it as a rift in lowering clouds. I was standing with a plate in one hand and a dishcloth in the other gazing at him. Since I had nothing to say he continued:

"You are the first woman who has been in this house in three years. Your being here has broken a spell, I trust forever."

"Will you kindly explain this fairly born breakfast?" I said.

"Certainly, I come here occasionally and happened to come early this morning, having some work to do here. Seeing a horse and carriage, I proceeded with caution. Looking in at the library window, I saw you sleeping on the lounge. It occurred to me that you would need a breakfast, and I set about preparing it. There was not much to give you, but I trust it sufficed."

"It was delicious. Now that you have explained I trust you will listen to my apology for trespassing on your domain." And I told my story, after which I said that I would no longer keep him out of his own house and suggested that he come inside. But he said that when a man gives up his house to a woman he has no business there so long as she occupies it. To this I replied that I made my own conventional rules. Besides, I would depart as soon as I had finished doing the dishes. But he remained where he was, and when I had finished he placed chairs on the porch, and I feeling sure that he had a story to tell me, we sat down for further chat. Then for the first time I saw a motorcar standing before the door in which he had come. This was his story:

"I built the house for a summer residence for myself and the woman I expected to marry. She was in delicate health, and we were prone to become more attached to one who is dependent on us for comfort than one who is independent of us. We planned the place together and while it was building used to come out here and watch the materializing of our conceptions. It is not an elaborate place, but we spared no pains to make it dainty."

"Before it was finished I knew that my beloved would not live to enjoy it. She was unconscious of the seriousness of her malady and continued to look forward to our occupancy of it with happy expectation. On no account would I break in upon this anticipation. Instead, I consulted constantly with her how we would have this and how we would arrange that, keeping her interested in what could never be realized in order to shield her from the dread truth."

"While the house was building I continued to make changes in order to prolong the period of construction. In her condition our residence here would not be convenient. She needed the care which she could not have here. When the house was finished I laid new plans for the grounds. One spring—the last of her life—we came out here frequently, and I worked with and directed men in planting and garden improvements, while she lay here on the porch and looked on, making such suggestions as occurred to her."

"Meanwhile my beloved was growing more and more feeble. But not till the day she left me did she realize that we were to be separated; that she would never occupy with me that on which we had lavished so much thought and care."

"All was finished at last. The place was ready, and my beloved's stay on earth came to an end. Perhaps had I not lost an object in the completion of what had so long occupied me I would have borne my bereavement more stoically. As it was, I became one of those who nourish a grief. I have kept this place and have come here occasionally as another would visit a grave. That cloud has been lifted. When I looked in at the library window and saw a human being there, sleeping, that castle of grief which I have created tumbled about me; these premises, which I have made a tomb of melancholy, have been restored to what they really are."

I listened to this recital with a sympathy that I did not try to conceal. I understood perfectly the change I had wrought. I appreciated the motive—his seeing a living woman in his home—that had led him to prepare a breakfast for her. For years he had had no one upon whom to lavish a single kindly act. Suddenly a woman appeared, and he took advantage of it. Indeed, he told me that the preparation of that meal, his watching me eat it, which he had done surreptitiously, was the happiest moment that came to him in years.

Upon examining Bob we found him still lame, but my new friend found the cause and removed it. He insisted on harnessing the horse to the vehicle, and when I left him he said to me:

"This will be the first day that I have ever spent here free from melancholy." My forcible entrance to another person's property occurred several years ago. The next time I entered it was as the bride of the owner. Since the place was perfect when it was finished there is nothing to do with it but enjoy it. But if I should see the slightest chance for improvement I would not mention it to my husband. We go there in May and remain through the summer. I have not yet exhausted the attractive landscapes in the vicinity as subjects for sketches."

Brush Fires Keep Firemen Busy.

Fire at High Falls.

The residence of Miss Fannie Elmdorf at High Falls, occupied by Thomas Van Fleet, was destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. The flames communicating to an unoccupied house next door owned by the Honk Falls Power Company. Household furniture owned by Louis Dyer stored in the house was burned. The cable of the New York Telephone Company carried on poles near the street was damaged but repairs were soon made. Soldiers stationed at the Rock Cliff Hotel aided in saving some furniture and clothing.

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

"Well, I see where they are going to build submarine chasers in the Rondout creek," said the friend excitedly as he grasped the street corner politician by the arm and halted him.

"Where did you get that dope?" asked the politician.

"Everybody is talking about it," returned the friend, "and they say that forty of the craft are to be built here for the government."

"Come to think of it," replied the politician thoughtfully, "I think I heard the same story the other day."

"What is there to it?" asked the friend.

"None of the local boatyarders acknowledge that they are building them as near as I can learn," said the politician.

"And then again I heard that there is an inventor living along the upper Rondout creek who is inventing a one man submarine boat," continued the politician.

"That's just a wild yarn," said the friend.

"It might be so at that," agreed the politician, "but according to rumor this inventor has been busy for some time, and when he gets his model working O. K. he is going to offer it to the government to use for coast defense work."

"Do you really believe the yarn?" asked the friend.

"No," replied the politician, "I was giving it to you for what it was worth."

"Do you suppose that Germany will try to send submarines over here and try to blow up the capital at Albany?" was the next query sent by the friend.

"Where did you hear that?" countered the politician.

"In a barbershop," replied the friend honestly.

"You can hear the same thing in any cafe for that matter too," said the politician.

"Do you think it would happen?" queried the friend.

"Judging from what has been occurring," said the politician, "anything might happen, but I hardly think that will."

"Why?" asked the friend.

"We all put guns on the Skillypot and send it out as a submarine chaser," replied the politician with a smile.

"Has the target machine come yet for the police force?" asked the friend, changing the subject abruptly.

"Not yet," replied the politician, "but it is expected to arrive some time in the near future."

"What do you think of it?" asked the friend.

"As I have never seen one," replied the politician, "I hate to express an opinion."

"Do you think it will assist in making the police become experts with their guns?"

"I hope so," said the politician.

"Who are these one hundred men that are going to form a Home Defense Guard?" was the next query of the friend.

"That's a deep, dark secret," replied the politician, "and only the chief of police and the police board will likely know their names."

"What's the idea of keeping the names secret?" asked the friend.

"It will make for more effective work it is thought," explained the politician.

"But how are they going to call them out in a hurry?" was the next query of the friend.

"I understand that each man on the force will have his telephone number at police headquarters," explained the politician, "and if he has not got a phone he will leave the number of the nearest phone to his house."

"That's not so bad an idea at that," said the friend.

"It's the only way they can be gotten out quickly," said the politician, "unless they rang a certain number on the fire alarm."

"Will they do that though?" queried the friend.

"The police board have made plans for any emergency that may arise," explained the politician, "so why should we worry?"

"I am not worrying," retorted the friend, "only I wanted to know."

"And there is a lot of other things I would not mind knowing," replied the politician, "but I never will."

Miss Sarah Dumond of Kingston has been visiting friends in the village the past week.

Miss Cornelia DeWitt is home for Easter week with Master Jack Veeder.

Miss Anna DeWitt is home after a prolonged visit in Brooklyn.

Mr. Hasten of Everett and Treadwell and family have taken the tenant house of John Woolsey on the Marlborough road.

The members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the village church had their usual social at the home of Miss Ruth Viedenberg on last Friday evening. Games, refreshments and a good time was given to them all.

From the jolly talk and conversation of those returning home it was perfectly evident that this was the fact.

The rather regular loss of chickens by different parties along the village street is getting somewhat monotonous and is rather disconcerting also to all owners of chickens. As yet no suspicion is attached to anyone beyond a dog which has been seen late at night with a squawking chicken in its mouth. If this marauder is caught, no doubt he will feel the effect of the new law regarding dogs.

Mr. Vosburgh, historian of the New York Genealogical and Historical Society, was a visitor in the village on Monday. He made quite a search among the gravestones to the old cemetery.

Last week Dr. Finley, president of the state board of education, sent out to all schools in the state the request to meet at the different school houses, in a general recapitulation of the gravity of the situation which will confront congress and the nation at 12 o'clock noon on April 2." In accordance with this request our village school met with a meeting at noon.

The occasion was utilized to accustom the older scholars to the proper method of procedure. The request for the meeting and its significance was read by the principal of the school from the circular sent to each school. Robert Hiller was then chosen chairman of the meeting and Alice Ernst, secretary.

The chairman then followed the program as outlined in the above mentioned request as follows:

1.—The singing of "Star Spangled Banner."

2.—That appropriate resolutions of loyalty and support be adopted by the children, for transmission to President Wilson.

3.—The Flag Salute.

4.—Singing of "America."

Winifred Snyder, Catharine McSpirt and John Stauble were appointed to make the resolutions requested which are given:

"We, the scholars of School District Number Four, town of Hurley, county of Ulster, state of New York, do herewith pledge our loyalty and support to President Wilson and also express our love for our country and respect for its flag and honor."

The above after being approved by Trustee A. B. Myer, was sent on to Washington as was suggested in the circular.

GLENFORD.

Glenford, April 4.—Miss Freda Krom of Kingston called on Mrs. Verna Moore on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Castle, Mrs. Carson Emberson and children from Ripton were guests over Sunday at Castle Hill House.

Ruth Castle, who has been confined in the house for some time with rheumatism, is on the gain.

Charles Cornelius of Kingston called on J. V. Moore Sunday.

The Catskill agent was in this place the past week delivering orders received and soliciting orders.

G. W. Quick of Willow was in this place on Monday taking orders for nursery stock.

Miss Verna E. Moore is stopping with friends in Kingston for a few days.

ULSTER PARK.

Ulster Park, April 4.—Mrs. E. Terpening and daughter, Catharine, are spending a few days with Mrs. E. Terpening.

Mr. Pennington and family have moved from Kingston to their farm in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Wells of Poughkeepsie spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. George Eckert.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Hermance and children of Poughkeepsie spent the week end at their home here.

Miss Mina Parsell of Kingston spent Sunday with Mrs. W. Scharrer.

Mrs. J. Fuchs, who has been under the care of Dr. J. A. Decker the past week, is reported better.

Mrs. C. Van Oostenbruge and son, Kenneth, are spending some time at Albany and Schenectady.

Scott & Bowne, Woodfield, N. Y.

Miss Katherine, who will spend a week with friends in New York and Brooklyn.

J. Hulstein has moved from Port Jervis to the house of Granville Soper.

S. T. Van Aken made a business trip to New York Saturday.

Miss Janet Story is ill with grip.

C. Van Oostenbruge has returned home after spending a few days last week with his son, Horace, of Schenectady.

Special services will be held in the Brick Church Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evening, beginning at 7.30. All are urged to attend these meetings. Sunday morning at 10:30 the Lord's Supper will be observed.

Miss Gladys Pennington has returned to Vassar College, after spending her Easter vacation with her parents.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 4, 1917.

New Yorkers may well take pride in the fact that their State is ready for any emergency. Governor Whitman and the Legislature rose to the new responsibilities which faced them with the breaking off of relations with Germany last month and all the departments of the State Government show a degree of preparation heretofore unknown in our history. The spirit of co-operation that Albany has manifested with the Federal Government plans for the National defense is in every way encouraging, the turning over of the site for the fortifications to protect New York city and the emergency appropriation of a million dollars for the National Guard being notable examples. The State Department of Health is ready with one thousand competent health officers available for immediate service in training camps or in the field, while the prisons have made their shops ready for the manufacture of needed military equipment. Military training for our youth, supplemented by vocational training so important to the successful waging of modern warfare, is already provided for in legislation soon to be effective in our schools. Altogether the record is in keeping with the patriotic spirit associated with New York ever since Revolutionary times, and Governor Whitman and his administration have earned the admiration of the commonwealth as well as of the country for their activity along lines essential to the safety of the Nation.

Of paramount interest locally is the Governor's action looking to the creation of a responsible military body for home defense. In effect, this will mean the enlistment in the State service of Home Guards, or Depot Companies, whose duties will be to replace the militia units ordered to the front. These corps will do police duty, suppress riots and guard public buildings and other structures the same as is now done by the National Guard. After the taking of a census of all able-bodied men in the State, these semi-civilian corps will be recruited and mustered into the service and then subjected to regulations for drill and discipline now in course of preparation. The State will provide uniforms which will resemble those of the regular army and the National Guard. In short, it is the intent to provide an effective defense force for duty within the State as contemplated under the militia law. This is as it should be. Kingston, the same as every other community where there is a National Guard unit, must have an organization of this kind under the jurisdiction of the State authorities and properly uniformed and equipped, so as to be efficient in time of need. War is not in the nature of a social engagement, but is a serious proposition. The Depot Companies must be placed on a sound military basis and under competent control, so that their usefulness to the State and Nation may be capitalized at its highest point. No more important duty confronts our mayors, county judges and chairmen of boards of supervisors than the starting of the machinery of defense along the lines so clearly outlined in the letter of instructions sent broadcast from the State Capitol by Governor Whitman on Tuesday.

Upon the initiative of city street employees, Kingston will next week see the experiment of "daylight saving" applied to this department of municipal activity. No turning forward of the hands of the clock one hour will mark the new dispensation. Instead, the men will come to work at 7 o'clock, an hour earlier than at present, and quit at 4 o'clock in the afternoon instead of 5 as under the existing arrangement. For the most part the men who work in our streets are older men, all of whom are not possessed of the snap and vital energy associated with their younger and perhaps palmer days. That fact only lends interest to their determination to get up a little earlier in the morning in order to get a little more time for their amiles or for recreation in the afternoon. No legislative meddling with the clock appears necessary in his instance. Possibly their recollection of the time not so long ago when a day's work was ten and even twelve hours instead of eight will make the change most satisfactory and successful for them. If the city of Kingston should follow their example and start all its daily enterprises with citizens rising an hour earlier each day such form of "daylight saving" would prove an enormous advertising asset and add greatly to the attractions of life through the summer months.

The man with the hoe will cut almost as much of a figure in the war as the man with the rifle if the bulletins from the Federal Department of Agriculture and the hosts of home garden clubs that have sprung up all over the land are correct in their surmises. For this reason, the early rising habit above mentioned is a thing to be encouraged. The Chamber of Commerce, in agitating the cultivation of vacant lots as well as the increase of home gardens, is doing something well worth while. It could do even better were it to startle its membership into action. The example of one prominent business man who was out making his fair street garden even fairer at 6 o'clock this morning deserves emulation. There are a number of waist lines that would be beneficially affected by such a course. The great value of the gardening, of course, will be to provide food and lighten the demands on the country's crops, which will be such an important factor in the great struggle to which this nation is now committed. So, on with the plow, let free seeds be unconfined, and the waste places within and without the city be made to yield their capacity of potatoes and other vegetables whose very scarcity makes them near-luxuries at the present time.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"I have never yet had a contribution rejected." "Writer or church-goer?"—Boston Transcript.
Walter—"Everything all right, sir?" Chronic Kicker—"No! There's nothing to find fault with."—Life.
Commuter—"Did you ever stop to think why men hurry so?" Suburbans—"Yes, once—and missed my train."—Judge.

"You seem indifferent to criticism in the newspapers." "I don't have time to keep up with it," replied Senator Sarghumb. "You ought to see what my constituents send me direct through the mail."—Washington Star.

"Darling," he cried, "the firm is going to give me a fifteen per cent raise to help us meet the general rise in prices." "Oh, did you?" said her husband. "Yes; I bought a churn and ordered buttermilk to be left here regularly. Won't it be nice to have really fresh butter?"—Boston Transcript.

Unfair.
The employer of a Polish servant maid who has learned to speak English was telling of her experiences with the telephone. After its use was explained to her she was eager to answer every call. One day a ring came and she jumped to the instrument.

"Hello!" came from the receiver. "Hello!" answered the girl, flushed with pride at being able to give the proper answer.
"Who is this?" continued the voice. "I don't know!" exclaimed the maid. "I can't see you."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

One On His Honor.
A police magistrate in Cleveland was disposing of cases at the rate of about two a minute, with great exactness and dignity, being judge, jury and attorney, all in one.

"Then you are sure you recognize this linen coat as the one stolen from you?" he said to a complainant.

"Yes, your honor."
"How do you know it is yours?"
"You can see that it is of a peculiar make, your honor," replied the witness. "That is the way I know it."

"Are you aware, sir," shouted the justice, turning to a closet back of him and producing a similar coat, "that there are others like it?"
"Indeed I am," replied the witness, still more placidly. "I had two stolen."—Case and Comment.

Thirsting for Knowledge.
A well known author has a great dislike for interviews and avoids their attentions as much as possible. One day he was walking in a Sussex lane when he espied a keen, alert looking man coming quickly toward him. As the stranger had all the appearance of a journalist, the author was firmly convinced that he was about to be interviewed, so he dodged about a convenient bridle path. But the stranger would not be shaken off, and doggedly followed him down the path, across a meadow and through a broken hedge, and at length, behind a hay stack, ran him to earth. The author, facing about, resigned himself to his fate.

"Glad you've come to anchor, old man," said the stranger, cheerfully. "Will you please tell me where I can find a 'pub.' I am dying for a glass of beer."—Exchange.

The Ruler.
Blessed above all others is he for whom the kingdom of Self-Respect remains to have and to hold. For there he always rules from an unchallenged throne. Across his benign boundaries no invading force can ever cross. Unthreatened and unafraid, he is ever more the master and the maker of destinies eternal and abiding.

Easter is dress up time

HOW would you like a dark blue serge suit or a dark mixture—maybe a brown or greenish shade in it; made by Hart Schaffner & Marx.

Or a stylish, well balanced Varsity Fifty Five, one, two or three buttons; any number of pleasing variations.

But the cutaway frock is the real right thing; it's here in the newest designs by Hart Schaffner & Marx; dark grey oxfords in a variety of shades.

Easter shirts, neckwear, and hosiery: "dress up" as much as you want to in these good things.

AT A SPECIAL TERM OF THE COUNTY COURT, held at the County Court House, in the City of Kingston, Ulster County, New York, on the 27th day of March, 1917.

Present—Hon. James Jenkins, County Judge.

COUNTY COURT, ULSTER COUNTY.—In the matter of the petition of Frederick C. Winters, duly verified March 27th, 1917, the affidavit of William S. DuBois, verified March 26th, 1917, the affidavits of Henry R. DeWitt and Virgil B. Van Wagoner, duly verified March 27th, 1917, the five certificates of the clerk of the surrogate's court of Ulster county, dated March 27th, 1917; the certificate of the county clerk of Ulster county, dated March 27th, 1917, from which it appears that a certain mortgage of record in the county clerk's office of Ulster county, purporting to be made by John L. Merritt and Sarah M. Merritt, his wife, to Peter Masten, Peter Masten and William M. Hayes, composing the firm of Masten & Hayes, David Conklin, Caleb M. Merritt and Cornelius J. Townsend, dated July 19, 1889, and recorded in the Ulster county clerk's office in book No. 94 of mortgages at page 561, on July 21, 1889, at 2 p. m., to secure the payment of $21,235.15 and which said mortgage appears to be undischarged and a lien upon the premises of said petitioner, Frederick C. Winters, situated in the city of Kingston, Ulster county, New York, on the easterly side of Clinton avenue, and known as No. 242-244 Clinton avenue, is paid; that the mortgages have been dead more than five years; that the firm of Masten & Hayes was dissolved more than twenty years ago; that said mortgage has not been assigned and that no action has been brought to foreclose the same; that letters testamentary were issued on the estates of William M. Hayes, deceased, but no mention was ever made of said mortgage in either or any of said estates.

Now, on motion of Henry R. DeWitt, attorney for the petitioner, it is ORDERED, that all persons interested in said mortgage be and they hereby are required to show cause at a term of this court appointed to be held on the 16th day of April, 1917, at the judges' chambers in the county court house, at Kingston, N. Y., at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, why such mortgage should not be discharged of record, and it is further ORDERED, that this order shall be published in the Kingston Daily Freeman, a newspaper published in the city of Kingston, N. Y., the city and county where the property is situated, once a week for two weeks, and it is further ORDERED, that notice by mail, said notice to consist of a marked copy of said paper containing the publication of this order, addressed to the following persons at the following addresses, on or before the 31st day of March, 1917, shall be good and sufficient service:

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.—STATE OF NEW YORK, office of the state commission of highways, Albany, N. Y.—Pursuant to the provisions of chapter 30, laws of 1909, as amended by chapter 646, laws of 1910, and chapter 80, laws of 1913, sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned at their office, No. 55 Lancaster street, Albany, N. Y., at one o'clock p. m. on Monday, the 9th day of April, 1917, for the repair of the following highways:

ULSTER COUNTY.

| Route No. | Class of Work. | Road Name. |
|-----------|---|------------------|
| 108 | 3rd Bit. Mac. Re-const. (No guarantee.) | Post Part I. |
| 1082 | 2nd and 3rd Bit. Mac. Resurfacing (No guarantee.) | Kingston-Hurley. |

And on Wednesday, April 11th.

Maps, plans, specifications and estimates may be seen and proposal forms obtained at the office of the commission in Albany, N. Y., and also at the office of Division Engineer B. H. Walt, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., (Columbia Institute, 11 Washington street).

The special attention of bidders is called to the GENERAL INFORMATION FOR BIDDERS in the items of proposal, specifications and contract agreement.

Proposals for each road or contract must be presented in a separate sealed envelope, endorsed on the outside with the name and number of the road or contract for which the proposal is made. Each proposal must be accompanied by cash or a certified check payable to the order of the state commission, in the full amount of the amount of the proposal which such cash or check accompanies.

This cash or check will be held by the commission until the contract and bond are duly executed.

The successful bidder will be required to give a performance bond for fifty per cent of the contract, and a maintenance bond covering the wearing surface of all roads except waterbound macadam and cement concrete pavements for twenty per cent of the contract price of the items which comprise the wearing surface.

Bonds to be executed by a surety company to be approved by the commission or a bond secured by the deposit of collateral securities to be approved by the commission.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

EDWIN DUFFEY, Commissioner.

I. J. MORRIS, Secretary.

You Can Make Excellent Cake With Fewer Eggs

Just use an additional quantity of Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder, about a teaspoon, in place of each egg omitted.

CREAM LAYER CAKE

| Old Way | New Way |
|---------------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| 1 cup sugar | 1 cup sugar |
| 1/2 cup milk | 1 cup milk |
| 2 cups flour | 2 cups flour |
| 2 teaspoons Cleveland's Baking Powder | 4 teaspoons Cleveland's Baking Powder |
| 3 eggs | 1 egg |
| 1/2 cup shortening | 1 1/2 cups shortening |
| 1 teaspoon flavoring | 1 teaspoon flavoring |

Makes 1 Large 2-Layer Cake

DIRECTIONS—Cream the sugar and shortening together, then mix in the egg. After sifting the flour and Cleveland's baking powder together, two or three times, add it all to the mixture. Gradually add the milk and beat with spoon until you have a smooth pour batter. Add the flavoring. Pour into greased layer cake tins and bake in a moderately hot oven for twenty minutes. This cake is best baked in two layers. Put together with cream filling and spread with white icing.

Ideal heat attracts good tenants

No one will long live in a poorly heated house, and the vacant house fast goes to pieces. There's genuine home-making in IDEAL-AMERICAN heating that is proved by the demand of thousands of renters who prefer to pay 15 percent or more rental for this guaranteed comfort, cleanliness, fuel economy and freedom from repairs and drudgery. The living, renting and sales value of any building, small or large, is greatly increased by an outfit of

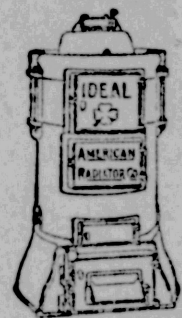

"Summer is always on top in such a house"

AMERICAN & IDEAL RADIATORS & BOILERS

IDEAL AMERICAN heating outfits saved millions in coal waste last winter

Both IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators will give wonderful service every year as long as the building stands. Made of non-rusting, ever-wearing cast iron sections which can be installed anywhere without tearing out doorways, walls or partitions. IDEAL Boiler does not require expensive excavation or brick-setting. If building is altered or enlarged the boiler and radiators may have extra sections added easily. Did you ever see a second-hand IDEAL Boiler or AMERICAN Radiator? And you never will! They're always like new. Fully guaranteed!

IDEAL Boilers have large fuel pots in which the air and coal gases thoroughly mix as in a modern gas or oil mantle or burner, thus extracting every bit of the heat from the fuel. Easier to run than a stove.

Sold by all dealers.

NAVAL DISPLAY WORTH SEEING

Kingston Firm Aids United States

Navy Department to Secure Recruits by Making a Striking Window Display.

The United States Navy, the first line defense, needs recruits to man the big fighting machines of the country and within a short time 25,000 men will be needed to man the warships already authorized by congress. In the navy the bluejacket aboard the ship has a chance to learn a trade and if he has a trade the navy offers an excellent opportunity. In order to present this fact to local people the navy department has written a letter to the large department stores in the cities throughout the country asking that their co-operation be given in presenting the proposition to local boys who are daily passing the stores.

A letter has been received by the Rose-Gorman-Rose store here asking that one of their windows be devoted to the display which will catch the eye of young men passing the store, and in response the firm has given one of their large windows on North Front street to such a display. From the navy department a host of toy battleships and submarines have been called into active service and form a part of the foreground of the display. The background is a mass of American flags draped about the other objects of the window display.

The numbers of the firm of Rose-Gorman-Rose have gotten up a most extraordinary display in response to the request of the United States and a number of pictures of the big fighting machines of the country form a part of the display. Cards bearing the inscriptions "25,000 men are needed for your navy now." "During 140 years of splendid achievement the navy has been the first line of defense." "Tomorrow it may be required to protect you from invasion." "You are proud of your navy, now is the time for you to do your part." "Get acquainted with the splendid opportunities the navy offers young men," and similar phrases are a part of the display.

Many young men who might join the navy daily pass the store window and the attractive display made up by the firm will act as a gentle reminder that a call at the nearest navy recruiting station will be service to the country and a benefit to the applicant.

The display has all the merit of ordinary patriotic display, with the additional advantage of accomplishing something of definite assistance. Against the background, two Union Jacks symbolic of the navy, are draped. At either of these American flags are draped. Across the upper edge of the background extends a border of dark blue, green, yellow and white stars are cut from cardboard and pinned to the border. Shields of red, white and blue are used at the ends.

The center-piece of the display is a recruiting poster, borrowed from a recruiting station as were the photographs and calendar in the foreground. At the upper edge of the poster is a unit composed of American eagle and shield with six flags.

EDISON AT WORK ON SUB DESTROYER

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Orange, N. J., April 4.—Somewhere in the low rolling hills of New Jersey the master inventor of America is working today under guard, in the aid of his nation. Thomas A. Edison has been for weeks almost continuously secluded in a laboratory working from eleven to twenty hours a day with only one assistant.

What Edison is working on no one knows. However, it is known that as head of the Naval Advisory Council, Edison feels that it is his duty to his nation to evolve an effective weapon of warfare which will cope with the submarine. It is generally supposed that it is upon this that the American genius has been continually working for several weeks.

It is long after dark when a little electric automobile winds slowly up the broad drives in Llewellyn Park and "Mr. Edison has called it a day."

Before sunrise the same little machine drives out of Llewellyn Park and "Mr. Edison is off for work again."

Just where the great inventor is at work with his experiments is not known. He is known, however, to have established a laboratory in some hidden spot in the hills that surround his home. Guards are distributed throughout the wooded hills and no one is allowed to enter the region.

CHILD KIDNAPPED AT QUARRYVILLE

Three men in an automobile stopped at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Van Valkenburgh at Quarryville shortly before noon on Tuesday and entering the house practically tore their little granddaughter from the arms of Mrs. Van Valkenburgh, and placing her in the car, sped toward Saugerties.

The kidnapped child was the daughter of Louis Van Valkenburgh, a son, who died suddenly in New York city recently. Louis Van Valkenburgh and his wife had separated some time previously and the child's mother resides at Haines Falls. It is not known yet whether the investigation of the seizure of the child.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Recital at Holy Cross Church.
A musical recital will be given at Holy Cross Church on Tuesday evening, April 10, by H. Norman Taylor, organist of the church. The tickets, which are 25 cents, are now for sale.

A very pleasant surprise party was given Miss Cornelia Van Aken at her home, No. 57 Green street, on Tuesday evening, April 3, by a large number of relatives and friends, in honor of her 17th birthday. The evening was spent with Victrola selections and games and at 10 o'clock the door leading to the dining room was opened and amid the decorations of American flags refreshments were served. The centerpiece was a large birthday cake lighted with seventeen red, white and blue candles. At 12 o'clock the guests departed wishing the hostess many more happy birthdays.

Hasselmann-Debnhardt.
Mr. and Mrs. William Hasselmann announce the marriage of their son Albert Hasselmann to Miss Hannah Debnhardt.

C. A. R. to Entertain Whitwick Chapter.

At the regular meeting of Whitwick Chapter, D. A. R., to be held at the chapter house on Thursday, tomorrow afternoon, the children of the American Revolution will give an entertainment as the program for the afternoon. The hostesses will be Mrs. Ellis and Mrs. Kingman. Arrangements will be completed for co-operation with the Red Cross Chapter in actual work.

Monday Club.

The Monday Club met this week with Mrs. Davis at her home on Johnson avenue. Mrs. Winne had the paper for the day, her subject being "American Art of Today." Not only was the subject most admirably presented, but Mrs. Winne had several illustrations of various forms of American art but also a fine collection of lace made in our American convents. Next week the club will meet with Mrs. Kenyon.

A Delightful Surprise.

A surprise was tendered on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. William Winchell, 733 Broadway, in honor of her niece, Miss Hilma El. Schiele, whose marriage to C. St. Peterson will take place next Wednesday. The affair was in the nature of a miscellaneous shower and more than a score of girl friends of the prospective bride joined in giving a variety of pretty and useful gifts together with their best wishes for her future happiness. An enjoyable evening was passed, games and a social time being followed by refreshments.

Garden Club Hears Profitable Address.

The Ulster Garden Club held its April meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Finch on Pearl street. Following the routine business of the club, George Burgevin addressed those present and there was a large attendance upon "Some Essentials in Practical Gardening," which was so interesting and practical that it will be printed in full in The Freeman later. In addition to the paper, which was highly appreciated, the club made further plans for the school garden work, having secured the assistance of Mr. Service, of the high school, to supervise all of the school garden work. As had been stated before, the flower market which is to be held on the high school grounds on June 25, under the patronage of the Garden Club, will be for the benefit of this school garden work. A pleasant social hour with continued informal discussion of the paper and other matters of interest to the club brought the meeting to a close.

Soiskanishade Club.

The Soiskanishade Club met on Monday as the guests of Mrs. Raynor. Following the roll call of "Dialect Quotations," which were exceedingly amusing, Mrs. Joseph P. Delanger gave a very informing and altogether delightful paper on "Prominent Humorists." Beginning with J. C. Haliburton better known by his pen name as "Sam Slick," Mrs. Delanger gave a short sketch of this and several other humorists, mentioning among the number Baily of the Danbury News, Josh Billings, Artemus Ward, and of our own time, Dunne and Bachelor. Among the more dignified of our American humorists were classified Irving, Holmes and Lowell. The paper closed with ex-president Taft's tribute to Mark Twain. Throughout the paper clever quotations from the various writers were given. The second paper on "New Books" was given by Mrs. Hull. The subject proved to contain unlimited material, including writers of biography, romance, travel, war and childhood. Both papers were carefully prepared and entertaining as well as informing. Next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Styles on Lafayette avenue.

The Coterie.

The Coterie met on Saturday with Mrs. Ellis. Detroit was the general topic for the afternoon. Miss Hale had the first paper on "Detroit, the Dynamic City." Beginning with the founding of the trading posts of Cadillac, the Frenchman, in 1701, Mrs. Hale told of the remarkable growth of the city, largely due to its situation. While usually thought of as only a manufacturing town, the fact was noted that there are 36 fine parks, beautiful buildings, handsome public buildings. Through its numerous manufactures, for many other products than automobiles are made in Detroit, the city has progressed from the 17th place in rank as an industrial city, to 4th place. A fine description was given of the Ford works and all of the enterprise connected therewith. A keen and a splendid "discussion." Considerable time was also devoted to the most interesting account of Charles Froer who went from Kingston to Detroit and there made a fortune which he liberally expended in the interests of art and culture. This excellent paper was followed by a second paper equally good on "The Trading Post," given by Miss Debnhardt, who elaborated upon the fact merely noted in the first paper, of the founding of the post by Cadillac. He received his grant from King

Louis of France, but after the establishment of the post had to contend with much opposition from the Canadian French people. The Indian life, the fur trading and all of the interesting features of general life at the trading post were graphically described by Miss Debnhardt. At the close of this part of the program, the election of officers took place, resulting as follows: President, Mrs. David Torrey; vice-president, Mrs. Ada Fuller; secretary, Mrs. Patschen; treasurer, Mrs. Ellis. The subject for study for the next year, was also chosen, and decided upon as being "South America." Following a delightful social hour, The Coterie adjourned to meet next week with Mrs. Brown.

My Burglary

It Had Farreaching Results

By ELINOR MARSH

I am of an artistic temperament. From my earliest girlhood I had loved beautiful scenes. I took to drawing pictures early and in time became a water color sketcher. In summer time I drove around in a vehicle called a rockaway, drawn by an old horse that had been in my family a long while and in whom I had every confidence.

At night I would sometimes stop at a hotel, sometimes at a farmhouse, and occasionally would place my blankets on grassy ground and spend the night in bivouac.

One evening when I was some miles from a town, which I expected to reach before dark, Bob went lame. Looking about for shelter for I could not get on with a lame horse—I espied a short distance ahead of me, perched on a ledge, a cottage. It was as artistic a piece of architecture as I ever saw with its grounds and vines growing over it. Indeed, the front entrance constituted a thing of beauty. If I could only be permitted to spend the night there I would be delighted.

I managed to get Bob to the gateway of the place and up a short winding road leading to the house. I was disappointed in not seeing any one about, and as I drew near it occurred to me that the place was unoccupied. The blinds were not closed and there was nothing to indicate that the house was empty. What was it that told me that the place was deserted?

Leaving Bob standing in the roadway, I went to the house and rapped on the front door with a brass knocker. It did not seem to me, if there had been any one within, that those knocks would have sounded so hollow. I listened, but there was no indication of any one stirring. Going around to the rear I failed to see any indication of a living being. There were no chickens, no dog, not even a lonely cat. Only a few flowers in beds near the house that I judged grew without being cultivated. There was a woodshed and some wood in it, but plenty of room for Bob in case I should have to leave him there.

Looking in at a window, I saw a library with a fine broad fireplace and among the furniture a large lounge. The sash was locked, and I went to other windows, but found them locked also. A trellis led to an upper window. It looked easy to climb, and I went up it and found the sash unlocked. I went into a bedroom and down a staircase. The front door was locked and no key, but I opened a side door by turning the latch.

I could understand the fascination of burglary so interested was I in appropriating the premises to my use for the night. There was a table in temporarily owning this place, so beautiful and yet so desolate, which was enhanced by my having to break into it and learn what there was suited to my necessities.

The next thing was to unharass Bob and give him his supper. Then I went into the house with my lunch box, in which I always kept something, and in which I now fortunately had enough to satisfy my appetite. There were cupboards in which eatables might be stored, but they were locked. After eating I lighted a lamp in the library and looked over the books. It was evident that whoever had filled these shelves was a well educated and intelligent person. I have never before come upon a library in which every book had a value. And what surprised me most was that some of the books were up to date. I read till quite late, then, throwing myself on the lounge, put out the lamp and went to sleep.

On awakening in the morning I was astonished to detect the odor of coffee. What did it mean? Was the house, after all, occupied? Had the occupants returned late? I arose and went into the dining room. The table was set for breakfast, but for only one person. Hurrying on, I entered the kitchen. In the range a kettle was simmering, and there was a coffee pot that emitted the odor. A toast rack stood on the range, filled, and a couple of eggs were ready for boiling.

I started to find whoever had come in, to apologize for my burglary, and not finding any one on the ground floor, went cautiously upstairs. The bedroom doors were open as I had left them the night before, but no one was in any of them. The house was as free from any person except myself as it was when I broke into it.

I went downstairs again, looked about me and listened. There was no sound save the simmering kettle in the kitchen.

lost to the breakfast table, I sat down to eat. My grace was:

"Fairly goodmother, I think thee."

Never did a breakfast taste so delicious. There was no great variety, but there was all I wanted. After I had eaten I removed the dishes to the kitchen, poured water from the kettle and proceeded to wash them.

"Fairly goodmother," I said aloud, "thou art more favor. Tell me to whom I am indebted for my lodging and especially for the delicious breakfast I have eaten."

"The obligation is all on the other side," said a voice behind me. Turning quickly, I saw a man standing outside the kitchen, his arms resting on the window sill.

I stood looking at him, not knowing what to say to him. He was an intellectual and refined looking man about thirty years of age. A certain sadness was stamped upon his features, but a change appeared to be breaking over it as a rift in lowering clouds. I was standing with a plate in one hand and a dishcloth in the other gazing at him. Since I had nothing to say he continued:

"You are the first woman who has been in this house in three years. Your being here has broken a spell, I trust forever."

"Will you kindly explain this fairy born breakfast?" I said.

"Certainly. I came here occasionally and happened to come early this morning, having some work to do here. Seeing a horse and conveyance, I proceeded with caution. Looking in at the library window, I saw you sleeping on the lounge. It occurred to me that you would need a breakfast, and I set about preparing it. There was not much to give you, but I trust it sufficed."

"It was delicious. Now that you have explained I trust you will listen to my apology for trespassing on your domain." And I told my story, after which I said that I would no longer keep him out of his own house and suggested that he come inside. But he said that when a man gives up his house to a woman he has no business there so long as she occupies it. To this I replied that I made my own conventional rules. Besides, I would depart as soon as I had finished doing the dishes. But he remained where he was, and when I had finished he placed chairs on the porch, and I feeling sure that he had a story to tell me, we sat down for further chat. Then for the first time I saw a motorcar standing before the door in which he had come. This was his story:

"I built the house for a summer residence for myself and the woman I expected to marry. She was in delicate health, and we are prone to become more attached to one who is dependent on us for comfort than one who is independent of us. We planned the place together and while it was building used to come out here and watch the materializing of our conceptions. It is not an elaborate place, but we spared no pains to make it delectable."

"Before it was finished I knew that my beloved would not live to enjoy it. She was unconscious of the seriousness of her malady and continued to look forward to our occupancy of it with happy expectation. On no account would I break in upon this anticipation. Instead, I consulted constantly with her how we would have this and how we would arrange that, keeping her interested in what could never be realized in order to shield her from the dread truth."

"While the house was building I continued to make changes in order to prolong the period of construction. In her condition our residence here would not be convenient. She needed the care which she could not have here. When the house was finished I laid new plans for the grounds. One spring—the last of her life—we came out here frequently, and I worked with and directed men in planting and garden improvements, while she lay here on the porch and looked on, making such suggestions as occurred to her."

"Meanwhile my beloved was growing more and more feeble. But not till the day she left me did she realize that we were to be separated; that she would never occupy with me that on which we had lavished so much thought and care."

"All was finished at last. The place was ready, and my beloved's stay on earth came to an end. Perhaps had I not lost an object in the completion of what had so long occupied me I would have borne my bereavement more stoically. As it was, I became one of those who nourish a grief. I have kept up this place and have come here occasionally as another would visit a grave. That cloud has been lifted. When I looked in at the library window and saw a human being there, sleeping, that castle of grief which I have created tumbled about me: these premises, which I have made a tomb of melancholy, have been restored to what they really are."

I listened to this recital with a sympathy that I did not try to conceal. I understood perfectly the change I had wrought. I appreciated the motive—his seeing a living woman in his home—that had led him to prepare a breakfast for her. For years he had had no one upon whom to lavish a single kindly act. Suddenly a woman appeared, and he took advantage of it. Indeed, he told me that the preparation of that meal, his watching me eat it, which he had done surreptitiously, was the happiest moment that came to him in years.

Upon examining Bob we found him still lame, but my new friend found the cause and removed it. He insisted on harnessing the horse to the vehicle, and when I left him he said to me:

"This will be the first day that I have ever spent here free from melancholy."

My terrible outrage to another person's property occurred several years ago. The next time I entered it was as the bride of the owner. Since the place was perfect when it was finished there is nothing to do with it but enjoy it. But if I should see the slightest chance for improvement I would not mention it to my husband. We go there in May and remain through the summer. I have not yet exhausted the attractive landscapes in the vicinity as subjects for sketches.

Fire at High Falls.

The residence of Miss Fannie Stenmeyer at High Falls, occupied by Thomas Van Pelt, was destroyed by fire Tuesday morning, the flames communicating to an unoccupied house next door owned by the Honk Falls Power Company. Household furniture owned by Louis Dyer stored in the house was burned. The cable of the New York Telephone Company carried on poles near the street was damaged but repairs were soon made. Soldiers stationed at the Rock Cliff Hotel aided in saving some furniture and clothing.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The winding up of the estate of Dr. Charles H. Roberts the eccentric millionaire of Oakes, town of Lloyd, apparently is in sight, six of the attorneys representing the executor and the heirs having discussed at much length before Surrogate Gill in the surrogate's court Tuesday the form of the final decree. Several of the suggestions were not welcomed by Harry C. Barker, counsel for Frank B. Lown of Poughkeepsie, the executor of the estate, who stated that they would upset his scheme of distribution. The objection of Mr. Barker was met with the statement that the decree should be sufficiently explicit to state in figures how many shares of the stocks remaining on hand should be distributed to the heirs who elect to receive such stocks in lieu of their cash equivalent, so that there could be no mistake.

Miss Frances Roberts, who has envied the proceedings on other occasions, was present and took part in the conversation relating to bonds and coupons which have been regarded as worthless. She insisted that her brother, Thornton Roberts, had purchased some of these bonds and was entitled to the coupons, and was willing, she said, that he should receive her share of the coupons to which apparently she was entitled. She called attention to the fact that a number of coupons or bonds on which payment had been defaulted were missing from the bonds which she had elected to accept as her share, which made it impossible to find a buyer who might be found if all the coupons were attached. As her brother had received bonds of the same kind with the coupons that belonged to them, she did not see why coupon-less bonds should be "unloaded" on her. Mr. Barker said all the coupons had been accounted for that had been found in the bundles of bonds and coupons in Dr. Roberts' safe deposit vault. Mr. Barker waved his hands at some of her suggestions, and both he and Danforth E. Ainsworth, of counsel for Executor Lown, laughed when she said that any sane man could work out a scheme of distribution that would be explicit. The hearing was continued in the afternoon. Howard Chipp appeared for Miss Frances Roberts, and the other counsel in the case were the same who have appeared in other recent hearings.

Mr. Lake's Will Filed.

The will of Vernon D. Lake of this city was filed and a citation for its probate was issued returnable April 3. To his son, Emerson J. Lake, the testator gives a bond and mortgage given by Grace H. Herzog and owned by him. To Virgil B. Van Wagoner he gives $2,500 in trust for the benefit of Nita Hammer during her lifetime, and at her death he gives such principal sum to Vernon Hammer, her son, or to her next of kin in case of Vernon Hammer's death. To his granddaughter, Hazel, daughter of Emerson J. Lake, he gives $2,500. The sum of $2,500 is given to Mr. Van Wagoner in trust for Vernon Hammer, to be paid when he becomes 21 years of age, and in case of his death such sum is given to Elizabeth Lake, his daughter-in-law. Bequests of $2,500 each are given to his sister, Georgie Longyear, wife of Elting Longyear, and to his sister, Orville Eltinge, wife of Lamont Eltinge. The balance of the estate he gives to his brother, Franklin R. Lake, of Durango, Colorado. Virgil B. Van Wagoner is appointed executor. The will was executed June 1, 1916, and witnessed by E. L. Angle and Miss Helen A. Jones. The value of the real estate is more than $5,000 and there is more than $5,000 of personal property. Judge Jenkins appeared for the executor.

Mrs. Dimmick's Will Probated.

The will of Mrs. Mary O. Dimmick of this city, whose provisions have heretofore been published, was admitted to probate. F. J. R. Clarke is the executor. The will was executed January 9, 1915, and witnessed by Judge Betts and Christopher Snyder. The value of the real estate is $5,500 and the personal property amounts to upwards of $50,000. Judge Betts appeared for the executor.

STONE RIDGE.

Stone Ridge, April 4.—The Rev. Mr. Shaffer will speak in the Reformed Church both morning and evening of Sunday, April 8th. Mr. Shaffer is a returned missionary from Japan and will speak upon his work. In the evening his address will be illustrated by pictures. The campaign for the every member canvass among all those interested in the Reformed Church is being pushed by the members of the consistory. On the first Sunday in May, teams of men will go out two by two and endeavor to see every member of the church and secure their subscriptions to the funds of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Egbert entertained a number of friends at dinner on Saturday evening.

Mrs. John Ballard has returned to Easton, Pa.

A play entitled, "Ulele Jack," will be given in the Grange Hall on Tuesday evening, April 17. This play has a cast of seven characters and everyone in the cast is a favorite. So everyone should try his or her best to be at the Grange Hall on the above date. The synopsis, etc., will be published later. Proceeds for the benefit of the M. E. Church.

Paper From Bark of Tree.

The natives in some parts of Indo-China employ various fibers in the attempt to supply their own paper. The Village du Papier, a suburb of Hanoi, owes its name to the fact that most of its 2,000 or 3,000 inhabitants make paper from the bark of a small "paper tree," a species of mulberry, found on the Black river in Upper Tonkin.

American Mineral Oil

Use of Mineral Oil.

Dr. Le Tanneur contributes to the Paris Medical some practical points in the use of mineral oil in constipation. The oil, he says, is in no way distasteful or even modified by the juices of the stomach and intestines. It acts as a lubricant and nothing else, though it tends to heal abrasions of the intestinal wall caused by rough particles of food.

The New York Medical Journal says mineral oil should be taken either before breakfast or after dinner, two tablespoonfuls being a dose. Its use should be continued every day for at least a fortnight, when the bowels will continue to work naturally without it, for the mineral oil is in no sense a cathartic, but it will cure constipation.—Kingston Daily Freeman, February 17, 1917.

ADVANCE ON BAGDAD.

THE ADVANCE ON BAGDAD.

One of the first photographs to be received in this country showing the activities of General Maude's British forces in Mesopotamia—the armies that recaptured Kut-el-Amara, routed the Turks and then drove them in disorder beyond Bagdad, capturing that ancient city of the Caliphs.

The photograph was made by a British Indian cavalry, followed by British infantry, crossed the Tigris river for the second time in the advance on Bagdad, under heavy fire from the Turks. Part of General Maude's forces are now forcing a portion of the Turkish army up the Diale river towards the Persian border while the remainder is pursuing the main body of Turks beyond Bagdad.

The Brotherhood of the Reformed Church has started to put into reality what has been the dream and talk of the village. Every society of the church will be given an opportunity to co-operate with the Brotherhood on various occasions to swell this fund. Contributions received will be mentioned from time to time. The addition as planned will be as large as the church itself, forming the letter "T" with the body of the church building. A large stage and kitchen will be one of the useful features of the new addition.

On next Wednesday evening, the Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church, in co-operation with the Brotherhood of the Reformed Church will serve a "jintney" supper in the basement of the church. As certain features of the jintney supper are to be a surprise to those who attend, no further mention would be prudent at this time.

The Brotherhood of the Reformed Church held its regular monthly meeting in the church last night. The officers of the Sunday school and Christian Endeavor were present by invitation from President Taylor and their cooperation secured to aid in the raising of the building fund. Plans were laid for an entertainment on Decoration Day, appropriate to the day, the proceeds to go to the building fund.

The choir of the Reformed Church will meet after prayer meeting for their last rehearsal before Easter, Thursday evening at 8:30. Special music will be rendered by the choir both morning and evening services. The anthems rendered by the choir on Palm Sunday were sung in a manner that deserves great credit. At the evening service last Sunday Andrew Taylor and William A. Vandervor, were installed as Deacons, and George Fairbrother, Elliot Hotelling and William E. Hotelling, as Elders, by the pastor, Rev. Homer L. Sheffer.

Why Plates Are Round.

All our plates are circular in shape. Now, a square or oval plate would be just as convenient. Is there any reason why plates should be of their present shape? It seems that if we dip into the far past we may discover the cause. Our remote ancestors ate their food off flat pieces of wood cut from a tree trunk. The tree trunk being cylindrical in shape, the earliest plates were therefore roughly circular, and the shape has been used ever since.

HE CUT A BEE TREE

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"It was Sunday mornin'. My wife said to me:

"Zeb, this is my day fur readin' the Bible, but I have lost my spectacles somewhar an' can't find 'em jist now. Wouldn't you like to read a chapter fur me?"

"I don't feel like readin' nutthin', I replied. 'I've got a mean streak on me an' hain't fittin' to read to anybody. 'I'm wishin' this mawnin' that I was somebody's dawg.'

"Maybe you'll feel better with the Bible in your hand," she coaxed. But it was no use. I felt meaner and meaner, an' I waved her back to the cabin. After a few minits mo' it struck me that I would go up on the side of the mountains an' cut down a bee tree that I knowed of. I had bin to it three or fo' times, an' as it was a big holier tree I was shore that it held a heap o' honey. I could sell that honey fur cash in town.

"I sharpened up the ax an' was about to move off when the ole woman cum out an' an' said: 'Zeb, you are goin' to wander in the woods on the Lawd's day, an' jist what you're goin' to do with that ax I don't know. But it's all wickedness, Zeb. Everybody outer respect the Sabbath day an' keep it holy.'

"My meanness was so mean that I shouldered the ax an' whistled to my dawg an' walked away widout another word.

"It was in the month of September, an' that had bin a frost the night befo'. The chill of the mawnin' kept the bees at home, an' not a one could I see when I got to the tree. I knowed they were there, however, an' I pulled off my coat an' went to work. I was goin' to have it fall across a big log and split itself wide open. If that was a heap o' honey that I would go back to the cabin an' git a washbuck to hold it. Maybe I wouldn't feel so mean then an' I would ax the wife to cum back wid me an' help carry the tub.

"If it had bin a hot mawnin' the bees would have cum buzzin' wid the first stroke of the ax, but as it was I didn't see narry an insect till after the tree fell. She spit open jist as I hoped fur, an' then about a million of those bees cum out at once. Maybe they didn't see me at fust an' that was the reason they called round an' round in a great cloud. I reckoned it was five minits befo' the fust bee lighted on me. He wasn't mad, an' he didn't sting. Then another an' another came, an' befo' I could count a hundred a quart of the pesky varmints had settled on me.

"Maybe you know 'buff about bees, stranger, to know that when they settle on you you mustn't go to fightin' back. If you keep mighty quiet they will all leave when they git ready an' no harm will be done to you. These bees, an' that seemed to be thousands of 'em, settled down on me out of bewilderment.

"Stranger, I may live to be a hundred years old, but I'll never be in any worse situation. The weight of those insects must have bin twenty pounds or over, an' some of them crawled down the back of my neck, an' some crawled up the legs of my trousers.

I had to call up all my grit to keep from yellin'. When I looked ahead an' thought they might be wid me fur hours an' hours I wanted to cry like a boy.

"You see, suh, I couldn't expect any man to be wanderin' through the woods, an', as far my wife, she was a mile away, an' I had she wanted to search fur me she would not know whar to look. I figured it out, an' reckoned I was in fur the whole day.

"A full hour had gone by an' the bees had settled down on me as if fur a long rest when I heard sumthin' movin' through the brush. It might be a bat who had smelled the honey an' was comin' fur his share of it, or it might be a coon or a woodcock. I dared not turn my head to see if I could make out what caused the noise, but by an' by, whatever animal it was, it got skeered an' moved away. I reckoned it was half an hour after this when I heard soft footsteps an' was never so happy in my life when heard the voice of the ole woman sayin' to me:

"Zeb, I was lookin' fur you, an' I found you some time ago. You seem to be in a bad fix."

"I am," I replied, "an' what am I gwine to do about it?"

"Zeb, have you got over your meanness? Is it all gone?"

"Every durned bit of it!"

"Well, I was here befo' an' seen jist how you was fixed. I bring up wid me this time a big torch, an' as soon as I kin strike a match I will light it. I have sprinkled it over with kerosene an' am gwine to cum close to you an' hold it out so that the bees will git the fumes an' drop off dead. Don't you go to movin' round, nuch or I may set your clothes afire. You had better shut your mouth pretty tight, fur I sprinkled on some sulphur as well as kerosene."

"Say, stranger, that was a neat piece of bizness. It took a good half hour, but the last bee was finally reached an' lay dead on the leaves at my feet. Then I gave my wife the tightest huggin' fur a year. She had done it all, an' nobody could have done better. I was kissin' her half the time."

"You back to the cabin to git the washbuck, an' we had it even full of honey when we got through with that ole bee tree. I have kept my promises to her. No mo' huntin' on Sundays fur me."

Upon the initiative of city street employees Kingston will next see the experiment of a clock ringing applied to this department of municipal activity. No turning toward of the hands of the clock one hour will mark the new demonstration. Last end the men will come to work at 10 o'clock, and at 11 o'clock will be present and quit at 4 o'clock. In the afternoon instead of under the existing arrangement. For the most part the clock will be on our streets as before, and of whom a good portion of the company and their families associated with their younger and perhaps palmer days. This fact will be noted on their determination to go a little earlier in the morning and to get a little more time for families or for recreation in the afternoon. No legislative meddling with the clock is proposed in this instance. To make their selection of the time now to ring when the clock is to be watered and cleaned, the hours in the end of the day. MAYOR CANFIELD RAPS MR. MERRITT

Attorney for Taxpayers' Association Accused of Not Showing Proper Respect to City Fathers—Some Hot Exchanges.

It has been one of Mayor Canfield's pet hobbies to discover some method of eliminating the Broadway crossing and whenever any one attempts to sidetrack it the fur will fly, as was shown at the meeting of the common council on Tuesday evening when he poured some hot shot in the direction of Attorney F. C. Merritt, representing the Taxpayers' Association.

The verbal blast came shortly after Clerk Doremus read a communication from the Taxpayers' Association, which had been filed with him by Mr. Merritt, and which lodged a protest against the elimination of the grade crossing at Broadway at the present time, or the expenditure of any money of the city in making an investigation. On the grounds that the state had no money on hand and would not for some years to pay for her share of the cost. The protest stated that at the present time the greatest delay is caused by freight trains being allowed to stop on the crossing and urged that the city enforce ordinances which would prevent the railroad from the practice.

Mr. Merritt further explained. Mr. Merritt, after the protest had been filed, arose and explained at some length why no money should be spent at the present time in making an investigation. In closing he suggested that some alderman offer a resolution rescinding the resolution passed at the March meeting appropriating $1,000 to be spent for making an investigation of the matter.

Mayor is Warned. When Mr. Merritt made his request Harold Styles, the mayor's secretary, stepped from the council chamber into another room where Mayor Canfield had gone after leaving the council chamber and informing him of Mr. Merritt's request. The mayor immediately hurried back and made a heated retort to Mr. Merritt.

Might Have Spent Some. Mayor Canfield said that any one acquainted with legal procedure would know that a resolution could not be introduced at this meeting rescinding a resolution passed at the last meeting, and that as far as the common council knew the committee of which Mr. Merritt had been appointed a member, might have already spent $500 and that if such a resolution as was requested was passed, who would have to refund the money?

The mayor said that the meetings of the common council were supposed to be in closed but there had been gross violations that evening. That no man had the right to address the common council without first being granted the privilege of the floor, and that a dignified way had not been used. He closed with the remark that "This is no meeting of the Taxpayers' Association but of the common council."

The applause that followed the mayor's words was led by George Cohen, who sat in the first row of the seats reserved for spectators.

Schick Intervenes. When the mayor had finished Alderman Schick said that no objection had been raised to Mr. Merritt speaking by the members of the common council.

Mr. Merritt Gets Permission. At this point Mr. Merritt rose in his seat. "Mr. President, may I have the privilege of the floor?" said he. Alderman Schick moved that permission be granted.

"Is there any objection?" asked President Crane, glancing at the other members of the city fathers. None objected so Mr. Merritt went on to explain that he had labored under a misapprehension when he had thought that any taxpayer had the right to attend a meeting of the common council and express his opinion on matters of legislation as long as he did so in a gentlemanly way. He said that if he had not acted as a gentleman should he would beg the pardon of the common council, and he thanked them for the courteous manner in which they had always treated him in the past and hoped they would continue to do so. If he was treading on anybody's corns they must be mighty, mighty sore. He then went on to explain what the Taxpayers' Association was organized for, and said that as long as he was connected with the organization it would never come before the common council with any small, petty matter.

Everybody Welcome. Mayor Canfield made it plain that everyone was welcome to attend the meetings of the common council and when they obtained permission in a regular manner from the common council were granted the permission of the floor, but there was a way that should be done and the proceedings were of a dignified nature.

He then went on to label the request made by Mr. Merritt as a petty matter and said that no city should go into the matter of eliminating grade crossings without getting expert advice. He was not positive that he was in favor of eliminating the grade crossing if it would cost more than a certain sum, but he believed all information possible should be obtained so that the matter could be thoroughly considered before any action whatever was taken in the matter.

Silence reigned for a few seconds when the mayor finished and sat down and was broken when Clerk Doremus took up the regular order of business, an account of which will be found in another column.

Very Different Things. Good air and freezing to death are very different things, though many seem unable to detect the difference.

Tonight

BETWEEN supper-time and bed-time the men of this country will light 1,080,000 Fatimas. This is Fatima's nightly average.

In every village and city, from cross-roads to metropolis, the glowing ends of Fatima Cigarettes will signal "Comfort" to smokers all over the land.

Fatimas are comfortable to the throat and tongue; and they leave you feeling "fit" and clear-headed at the end of a long Fatima day that leads into a fragrant Fatima evening.

It's the common-sense "Comfort" of their delicate Turkish blend that has made Fatimas known as a sensible cigarette. Tonight—try them!

GE CLEARWATER ANSWERS QUERIES

on Judicial Procedure in New York State for Benefit of California Bar of Interest to Laymen as Well as Lawyers.

The Hon. A. E. Bolton of San Francisco, president of the California State Bar Association addressed a number of questions to the Hon. Charles Evans Hughes, president of the New York State Bar Association relative to the administration of justice in the Appellate Courts of this state, which Judge Hughes because of his long absence upon the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States at Washington, referred to Judge Clearwater to answer.

Some of the questions and Judge Clearwater's answers are of interest to the layman as well as to the lawyer, and are here given:

Generally speaking, how long after a record is filed before a decision is finally reached?

A. In the Appellate Courts of the first instance known as our Appellate Division, is from three to six months; in the Court of Appeals, the Court of Last Resort, about eighteen months.

Must the court in all cases file a written opinion?

A. No.

How many judges are there in the Court of Last Resort?

A. At present, ten.

Do they all sit together, or do they divide into departments?

A. In the Court of Appeals, seven judges sit together; the three not sitting devote that interim to the examination of cases which they heard while sitting.

Do they favor oral argument?

A. Yes.

Has oral argument been found by the Appellate Court to be a satisfactory method of presentation?

A. Yes.

Does the bar favor oral argument?

A. Yes.

Generally speaking, about how long after submission is a decision reached?

A. Between thirty and fifty days.

Do the judges reach a conclusion in conference, and then assign to a justice to write the opinion, or is the matter referred to a justice to write an opinion, and then passed around for the concurrence of enough of the members of the court to give it effect?

A. The judges reach a conclusion in conference, and then assign to a justice to write the opinion. The opinion is then passed to each of the justices who participated in the hearing of the case. Either they concur, dissent or write a separate opinion which may concur in the result, but differ as to the grounds upon which the conclusion is predicated.

About how many contested cases does the court dispose of each year?

A. In the year 1916 the intermediate Appellate Courts, known as Appellate Divisions, disposed of 3,841 contested cases; the Court of Appeals, the Court of Last Resort, disposed of 680 contested cases.

Is there any complaint at the bar as to the length of opinions?

A. No.

Is there any complaint on behalf of the court as to the length of briefs?

A. Occasionally, but not frequently.

In about what per cent of cases are re-hearings granted?

A. In so few as to be negligible.

What salary is paid the judges of your Court of Last Resort?

A. $13,700.

For what term are they elected?

A. Fourteen years.

Do you have any difficulty in obtaining legal learning and ability on the bench?

A. It is becoming increasingly difficult.

Does the bar in any way influence the election of justices, and if so in what manner?

A. Our various Bar Associations frankly express their opinion as to the qualifications of candidates, and if a notoriously unfit candidate be nominated, defeat him.

Are they nominated by political parties, or in what manner?

A. By primary ballot.

Is appeal made expensive or otherwise?

A. Aside from the fees paid to counsel, which are not taxable against an unsuccessful party, an appeal is not expensive.

Where jurisdiction of the court is dependent upon the amount, what is the amount?

A. It is not thus dependent.

Have you an intermediate Appellate Court, if so state generally to what extent?

A. We have four intermediate Appellate Courts of the first rank, known as Appellate Divisions, which are composed of from five to seven judges each. They review the cause both upon the law and the facts. An examination of the decisions of our Appellate Divisions, which doubtless you can consult in your state library, and of the provisions of our Code of Civil Procedure, which doubtless also you can see there, will fully advise you regarding the constitution and powers of these intermediate appellate tribunals.

Was it initiated as a relief to the Court of Last Resort?

A. To some extent they were.

Has the result been satisfactory?

A. Fairly so.

Are its decisions final or subject to review by the higher court?

A. In many cases where the judgment of the intermediate court is unanimous, there is no review. Many of our lawyers of the first rank are of the opinion that the existing right to appeal should be further limited and restricted.

Are you able to get as high grade men upon the bench of the intermediate courts as on the bench of the Court of Last Resort?

A. Yes.

Correct.

THE DOCTOR'S BILL

It Occupies the Attention of the County Court.

At the opening of county court this morning the actions brought by Alexander Siegel against Richard Lasher, to recover on promissory notes, and an action to recover on contract, were put over the term upon payment of witness fees as Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., the attorney for the defendant, is ill. Newton Fessenden appears for the plaintiff. The actions involve some $500. The motion to put the cases over the term was made by Mayor Casfield and opposed by Mr. Fessenden.

A jury was taken in the case of Dr. Cyrus R. Baker against John Deimler, an action to recover $116 for professional services. Newton Fessenden appears for Dr. Baker and William H. Grogan for the defendant.

Must Not Throw Stones.

This morning a young lad was summoned to appear before Recorder Lang and explain how he happened to hit a little boy, four years old, with a stone. The boy who threw the stone is 14 years old. He said he had thrown a stone at his brother, who was teasing him, and did not mean to hit the boy, who received the stone in the back of his head. Recorder Lang warned the stone thrower that if he was caught throwing stones again he would be severely dealt with. The man whose boy was hit with the stone did not care to have the stone thrower punished at this time but warned him to behave himself in the future.

Suffrage Census Taken.

Word was received in Kingston today by local suffrage leaders that the New York State Woman Suffrage Party, with the Republican and Democratic State organizations, has been appointed to take the war census provided for by the Robinson Bill which was signed by the governor last week. The purpose of the census is to ascertain by a personal canvass what each man and woman in the state can do for the country in case of need.

Maxwell Quality has been and will be rigidly maintained in spite of the big and constant increases in the cost of materials.

That's the Maxwell policy, fixed and immutable as the Rock of Gibraltar.

For years the Maxwell Company has been proving it in the Maxwell car, which has come to be recognized as the "World's Greatest Motor Car Value."

—as the car of power—of ease of control—of stability—of endurance—of economy.

200,000 satisfied Maxwell owners attest to the success of that policy.

More than three thousand Maxwell dealers owe their business stability to the fulfillment of that policy.

The First Consideration is—Maxwell Owners' Protection

No matter what other motor car manufacturers may do in the face of the greatly increased cost of raw materials, the Maxwell Company is going to maintain the high Maxwell standard of quality and only make a slight increase in the cost of the car.

While we are sorry that there is any increase, it can't be helped—because the first consideration is Maxwell quality.

—the quality which has given the Maxwell the two world's non-stop records of 22,000 miles, the 1916 record, and 23,500 miles, the 1917 record, at amazingly high mileage per gallon of gasoline.

This Small Increase is Your Big Insurance Policy

If the Maxwell Company didn't make the increase, slight as it is, it would have to skimp here and there in materials, construction and refinements.

—and that the Maxwell Company will never do.

No manufacturer can make a car today for the same cost as he could a year ago.

The fact that the price of the Maxwell will be raised is your assurance that the Maxwell campaign is still putting the same quality into the car—your guarantee of still getting the "World's Greatest Motor Car Value."

In Fact, Better Value Than Ever Before

As a matter of fact, the Maxwell is now an even better "buy" than ever before.

Not because the model or design is changed in whole or in part.

—but because the Maxwell you buy today is the super-refinement of the original highly successful model of four years ago.

—the super-product which time and experience in manufacturing this powerful car have demonstrated to be right.

—the same proud Maxwell model which, in recent competitive tests held by the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale and Prof. Gallup of the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, proved itself the most economical of all the cars tested.

The Car That Everyman Can Own

Maxwell economy of upkeep has made it everyman's car. Thousands upon thousands of Maxwell owners have told us that their running costs are as little as six to eight dollars per month—an amount which the average man spends on casual luxuries.

The Maxwell gives an amazing mileage per gallon of gasoline. Instance, the world's non-stop record run of 22,000 miles, when a Maxwell stock car averaged 22 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Owns a World's Non-Stop Champion Car

There is no reason why you shouldn't. It's first price is small—far less, when you take into consideration its complete equipment and luxurious refinements, than any other car made.

Then its cost of upkeep is so little as to make the cost of a family's ordinary luxuries extravagant by comparison.

With the power in its motor to make up hill and down dale like a level road:—with the ease of control that makes driving sheer, troubleless pleasure:—and with the stability and endurance that makes the Maxwell, not a one season, but a many-season car:—the Maxwell is beyond doubt the "World's Greatest Motor Car Value"—everyman's car.

May 1st, the New Price—$665—Goes Into Effect

But You do not have to pay the Increase in Price if you buy your Maxwell now.

You Can Make Excellent Cake With Fewer Eggs

Just use an additional quantity of Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder, about a teaspoon, in place of each egg omitted.

CREAM-FLAYER CAKE

| Old Way | New Way |
|---------------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| 1 cup sugar | 1 cup sugar |
| 1 cup milk | 1 cup milk |
| 1 cup flour | 1 cup flour |
| 2 teaspoons Cleveland's Baking Powder | 4 teaspoons Cleveland's Baking Powder |
| 1 egg | 1 egg |
| 1/2 cup shortening | 1/2 cup shortening |
| 1 teaspoon flavoring | 1 teaspoon flavoring |

Makes 1 Large 2-Layer Cake

DIRECTIONS—Cream the sugar and shortening together, then mix in the egg. After adding the flour and Cleveland's baking powder, gradually add the milk and beat with spoon until you have a smooth batter. Add the flavoring. Pour into greased layer cake tins and bake in a moderately hot oven for twenty minutes. This cake is best baked in two layers. Put together with cream filling and spread with white icing.

Brown's Business Booming in City and Vicinity.

Again the value of The Freeman as an advertising medium has been demonstrated and its large circulation in the immediate vicinity and the neighboring counties has proved a business producer for one of the advertisers.

The Brown Vulcanizing Works during the past month carried an ad in The Freeman and the firm during that time had done the largest business since organized. Mr. Brown has sold over 500 tires during the month and over 300 tubes and credits his advertisement in The Freeman as one of the chief business-getters. Orders from towns some distance from here were received from people who had read the ad in The Freeman.

Ideal heat attracts good tenants

No one will long live in a poorly heated house, and the vacant house fast goes to pieces. There's genuine home-making in IDEAL-AMERICAN heating that is proved by the demand of thousands of renters who prefer to pay 15 percent or more rental for this guaranteed comfort, cleanliness, fuel economy and freedom from repairs and drudgery. The living, renting and sales value of any building, small or large, is greatly increased by an outfit of

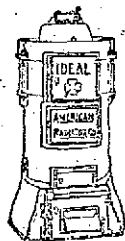

"Summer is always on top in such a house."

AMERICAN & IDEAL RADIATORS & BOILERS

IDEAL AMERICAN heating outfits saved millions in coal waste last winter

Both IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators will give wonderful service every year as long as the building stands. Made of non-rusting, ever-wearing cast iron sections which can be installed anywhere without tearing out doorways, walls or partitions. IDEAL Boiler does not require expensive excavation or brick-setting. If building is altered or enlarged the boiler and radiators may have extra sections added easily. Did you ever see a second-hand IDEAL Boiler or AMERICAN Radiator? And you never will! They're always like new. Fully guaranteed!

IDEAL Boilers have large fuel ports in which the air and coal gases thoroughly mix in a modern gas or oil mantle or burner, thus extracting every bit of the heat from the fuel. Easier to run than a stove.

State of New York, County of Ulster, ss.: Before me, a notary public, in and for the state and county aforesaid, personally appeared Eugene Cornwell, who, having been duly sworn according to law, depose and say that he is the business manager of the Kingston Daily Freeman, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, circulation, etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 463, Title 100, Laws of the State of New York, in the revision of the laws of this state, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are:
Publisher, Freeman Publishing Company, Kingston, N. Y.
Editor, Jay E. Klock, Kingston, N. Y.
Managing Editor, Abraham W. Hoffman, Kingston, N. Y.
Business Manager, Eugene Cornwell, Kingston, N. Y.
2. That the owner is Jay E. Klock, Kingston, N. Y.
3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are the Estate of B. C. Cushman, Kingston, N. Y., and the First National Bank of Rondout, Kingston, N. Y.
4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company, but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing sufficient full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as such, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.
5. That the average number of copies of each issue of this publication sold or distributed, through the mails or otherwise, to subscribers during the six months preceding the date shown above is 6,000.
EUGENE CORNWELL,
 sworn to and subscribed before me this 24 day of April, 1917.
JAMES S. LOW,
 (My commission expires March 30, 1919).

SARAH HUGHES, and CATHERINE HUGHES, ADMINISTRATRICES, etc., OF THE ESTATE OF EDWARD HUGHES, DECEASED.
A. T. Cleaver, Attorney for Administratrices, Ulster County Savings Bank Building, Kingston, N. Y.

GREAT PITCHERS NEVER IN NO-HIT GAME

Walter Johnson and Grover Alexander, the greatest pitchers in baseball today, have never entered the select circle of no-hit fame. Eddie Plank, one of the greatest southpaws of all time, never pitched a no-hit game. No-hit games are rare in the majors, and still it is surprising that pitchers of the caliber of Plank, Johnson and Alexander, with years of service, have never been able to go through nine innings without a safe tap being made off their delivery. Plank has been pitching winning ball for 16 years and has pitched several low-hit games. Johnson has a number of one and two hit games to his credit, as has Alexander.

ALEX IN SELECT SET

Grover Cleveland Alexander now ranks among the highest-paid players and managers in baseball. He has compromised with the owners of the Phillies and signed for $12,500 next season, which is $2,500 less than he was holding out for. He is the highest-salaried pitcher in the National league, receiving the same amount as does Walter Johnson, the American league's star. The leaders, as to salary, are:

|--------------------------|----------|
| Tris Speaker, Cleveland | $17,500 |
| Ty Cobb, Detroit | 15,000 |
| Eddie Collins, Chicago | 15,000 |
| Walter Johnson, Wash. | 12,500 |
| Grover Alexander, Phils. | 12,500 |
| Johnny Evers, Boston | 10,000 |

DIAMOND NOTES

Clinching may be eliminated from boxing, but from baseball—never! Tris Speaker's weak spot has been discovered at last. He's a golf bug. Many an error made by a ball player is caused by the void under his cap. The Athletics will win the pennant, just like the Swiss navy will dominate the seas. Put Moran, boss of the Phils, does not think that the baseball rules should be changed. Connie Mack's team is the great puzzle in baseball this spring. The puzzle is to find the team. Captain Charley Herzog of the Giants has taken up aviation and has made several flights. Mike Monosky, former Fed league outfielder, is another Benny Kauff so far as egotism is concerned. Imagine what would happen if some sport scribe should write of Clarence McGraw and Muggsy Rowland. Phil Ball, owner of the Browns, is trying to induce Fledler Jones to make room on the club for Mike Mowrey. In about a month from now many a recruit pitcher will be showing a lotta speed—getting back to the sticks. The Sherman club of the Western association has elected C. W. Bassell as its president for the coming season. Manager Lee Fohl of the Indians thinks his pitching staff will prove to be one of the best in the circuit this summer. The guy who strikes out in a pinch this summer will return to the bench accompanied by a "Hep, hep," from the fans. Colonel Acosta, who lost his life recently in the Cuban revolution, was the father of outfielder Acosta, of the American league. With Chick Gandil gone, there is much interest in the development of Louis Gusto as a first-sacker on the part of Cleveland fans. Slim Sallee is a strong advocate of berth control. He says the Pullman company makes 'em too darned short for a full sized man. Baseball has been introduced among the Moros, and they call the umpire the "egysoklorot." Sounds like a pretty accurate description. "Ten-cent baseball is a thing of the past," we read. Oh, we dunno. A lot of it is likely to be played this year, even if the fans do pay more. Hal Chase and Tris Speaker hit like demons in their leagues, but the Kaiser's batting average in those leagues under the sea has 'em faded. The Toledo club will give a trial to a young shortstop fresh from high school by the name of Walter Leonard. He hails from Fort Recovery, O. A lot of ball players are complaining about the cutting of their salaries this year, when all they would have bought with the money, anyway, would have been food and clothing.

UMPIRE IS MOST VERSATILE

Ernest C. Quigley of President Turner's staff of umpires is probably the most versatile sport official in the country. The Saturday after the close of the world's series the umpire made a quick switch from baseball to football. The rest of the football schedule brought no rest to Quigley, who then refereed some of the big basketball games in the middle West. Quigley has built up a big reputation as an official in these varied sports and is immensely popular.

NEVER LOST BASEBALL GAME

Gilmour Doble Holds Greatest Record Ever Established by Coach—Has Never Been Beaten.

Gilmour Doble, the University of Detroit's new coach, holds the greatest record ever established by a baseball mentor. His teams have played 57 games, winning 54 and tying three in a period covering 12 years. His first team, the Minneapolis High school, won four games in a season, all they played. The next two years he coached the North Dakota Aggies, played eight games and no team was able to score a point against Doble's eleven. In 1908 he went to Washington, where for nine seasons he tutored teams that never went down to defeat.

LUCKY STRIKE

It's toasted LUCKY STRIKE cigarette

ALWAYS fresh. Always in condition. The tobacco—it's toasted, to hold the Burley flavor.

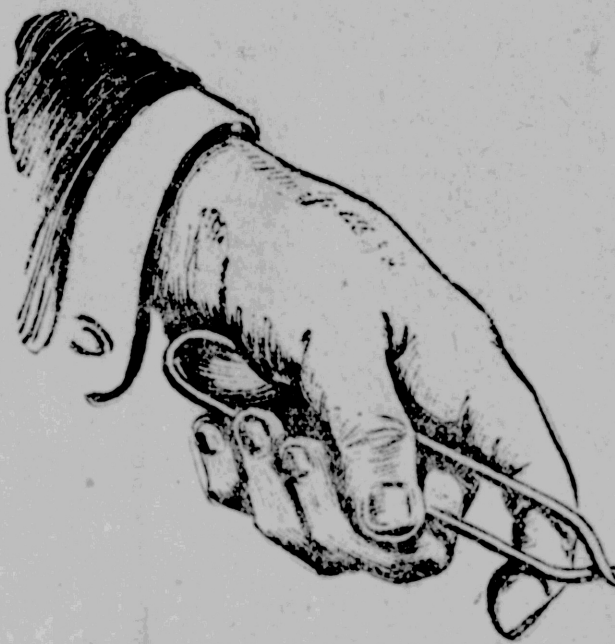

Of course you like hot buttered toast; unless you're one out of a thousand.

Lucky Strike cigarettes are going to please you for the same reason—the toasted flavor.

And the real Burley cigarette at last

Burley tobacco, the regular man's favorite, couldn't be made into a cigarette until we discovered the toasting that held the flavor.

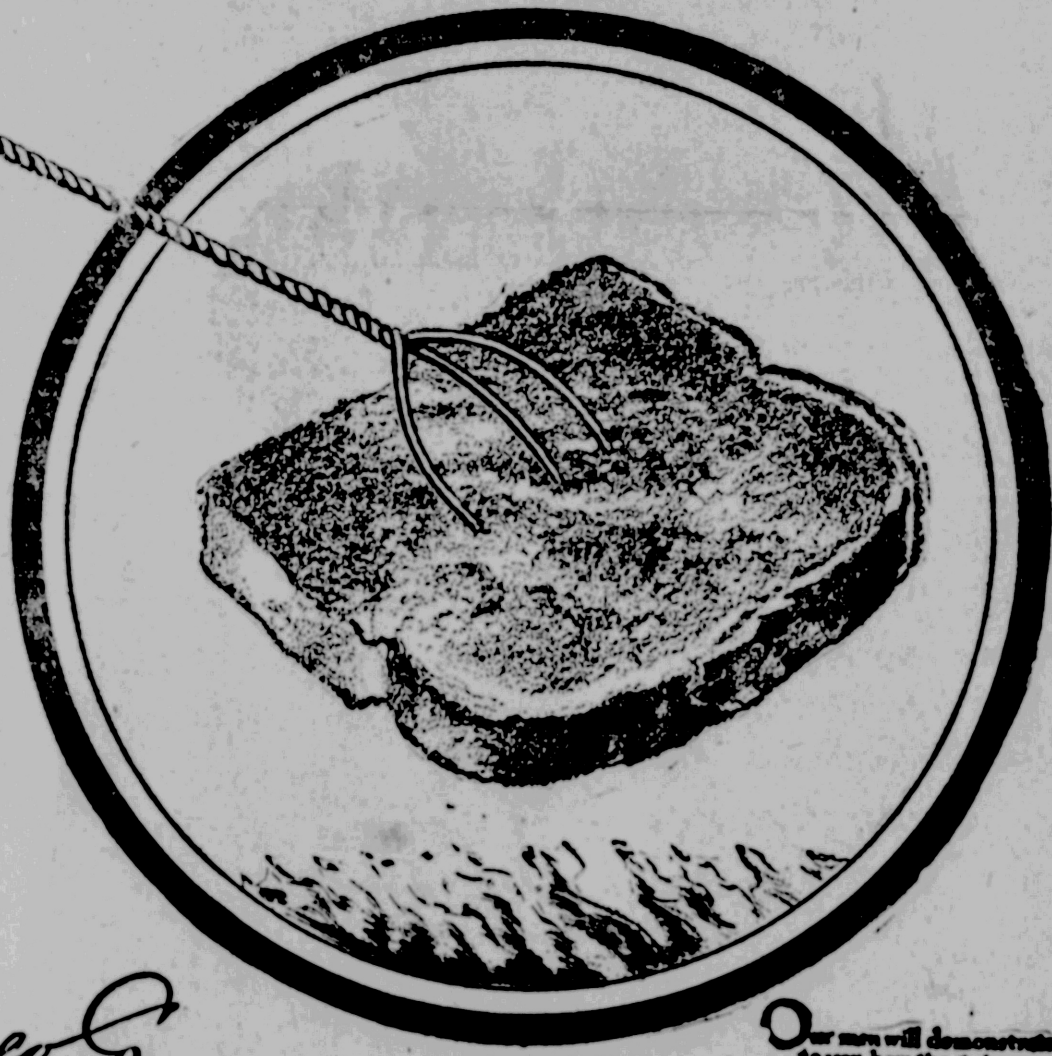

Some combination! The toasted flavor; the "blame good" Burley;—and a new, different cigarette!

A Peddling Partnership

By WARREN MILLER

Johnny Cosgrove, millionaire, determined to marry a girl who didn't know he was rich and at the same time a person of intrinsic worth. John was fond of an outdoor life, and his plan was influenced by this taste. He concluded to rig himself up as a peddler, travel through the country selling such articles as women need and thus make the acquaintance of some girl whom he could study in-cognito. He bought an auto delivery wagon and stocked it with tin pans and needles, hosiery, shoes, grid-irons and every article he could think of that a woman would want. It was a bright spring morning when John's loaded auto was brought up before his house by his man Thomas, whom he had charged with procuring the outfit, and John, rigged out in a cheap made suit he had bought at a cheap clothing store and a faded straw hat, sallied forth and, taking the wheel, started on his tour. "If I don't get a wife," he said to himself, "I'll at least enjoy myself." Then aloud to Thomas, "Forward to-day's mail to Waverly to Martin Irvine. I'll keep you posted where to send it from that on."

Johnny drove off, and a window sash on the opposite side of the street was closed at the same time. A few minutes later a girl emerged from a front door beneath the aforesaid window and hurried down the street.

Johnny struck the road to Waverly, then began to stop at houses along the way. He chaffed the wives, chuckled the children under the chin and otherwise made himself agreeable. The consequence was that he sold his goods readily, though he generally made his prices to suit purchasers. When night came he put up at the only hotel in Waverly.

In the morning he breakfasted on spring chicken—and after the arrival of the mail started again on his travels. He had not gone far before he heard the rattling of a machine behind him and pulled out to the right to let it go by. As it did so Johnny saw that its rear was got up to hold a sewing machine which was strapped down, and the car was driven by a young woman, comely, though plainly dressed, who called to him to know if the road held good and for how long. Johnny gave her the information she desired, and the two fell into conversation. The girl told Johnny that she was a sewing machine traveling agent. She also informed him that her father was comfortably off in this world's goods, but she didn't propose to sit around waiting for a husband and must have occupation. "By Jove," exclaimed Johnny to himself, "that's the kind of girl I'm looking for!"

John kept on one side of the road, the girl on the other, the two moving side by side except when vehicles passed, at which time John fell behind.

"I wish," said John to her after awhile, "that we could make a double team of it, a joint stock concern, to take in peddler's goods and sewing machines."

"Oh, we couldn't do that," said the girl, who gave her name as Molly Sparks, "though I'd like to ever so much. I sometimes feel afraid traveling on lonely roads."

"What's the objection to a partnership?" asked John.

"I don't think it would be exactly proper. People would take us for man and wife, and when they found we were not they'd talk."

John thought awhile, then proposed that they should lay out a route together for the next day, the girl to put her sewing machine in his motor-car. They would stop for the night at different hotels, but travel together during the day. The girl, with apparent reluctance, assented to the plan, and the next day they carried it out. But they paid more attention to each other than to peddling.

This method of travel now kept up until John was satisfied that he might go farther and fare worse. The girl was far above the ordinary country lass, and John saw an option in marrying in his own mind.

"No, you're not. I've got money of my own. I knew you were a good witch and thought I'd snare you, that's all. I'll make you a loving wife."

And she did.

HOTBED GARDENS.

Early vegetable crops have proved quite profitable in many instances in Oklahoma, says C. W. Rapp of the department of horticulture, Oklahoma Agricultural college. This is especially true of lettuce and radishes when planted in hotbeds or cold frames. For the extreme early crops a hotbed will be necessary, but lettuce and radishes are rather hardy and can be grown in a cold frame quite early in the season.

In most instances a bed of good, rich soil is ridged behind some sheltered place. A frame may be used, but is not necessary. The seed is sown and some form of protection is provided for severe weather.

Lettuce, radishes and other hardy vegetables, when planted in this way and properly handled, are frequently ready for use from four weeks to six weeks before those planted in the open.

GERMANS PAID MILLIONS TO RUSSIAN OFFICERS IN REPORT

Petrograd, April 4.—More than $11,500,000 in bribes was paid by Germany to Russian commanders to surrender their positions and let through the German troops to quell the recent revolution, according to unofficial reports today of the new government's investigation of German corruption of Russian officers.

It is expected several men of high command will be tried and probably executed.

General Kuropatkin, Governor of Riga, it is said, received $8,000,000 to capitulate, but reported the attempted bribery and sent the money to the Duma Government. The German agent who paid over the money killed himself, it is reported, when he learned Riga would not be surrendered after all.

The investigation so far has found, it is said that $2,000,000 was paid to the commander at Libau and $1,500,000 to the commander at Mitau. It is alleged that the surrender of Kovono was paid for, but the price has not been named.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The winding up of the estate of Dr. Charles H. Roberts the eccentric millionaire of Oakes, town of Lloyd, apparently is in sight, six of the attorneys representing the executor and the heirs having discussed at much length before Surrogate Gill in the surrogate's court Tuesday the form of the final decree. Several of the suggestions were not welcomed by Harry C. Barker, counsel for Frank B. Lown of Poughkeepsie, the executor of the estate, who stated that they would upset his scheme of distribution. The objection of Mr. Barker was met with the statement that the decree should be sufficiently explicit to state in figures how many shares of the stocks remaining on hand should be distributed to the heirs who elect to receive such stocks in lieu of their cash equivalent, so that there could be no mistake.

Miss Frances Roberts, who has endeavored the proceedings on other occasions, was present and took part in the conversation relating to bonds and coupons which have been regarded as worthless. She insisted that her brother, Thornton Roberts, had purchased some of these bonds and was entitled to the coupons, and was willing, she said, that he should receive her share of the coupons to which apparently she was entitled. She called attention to the fact that a number of coupons of bonds on which payment had been defaulted were missing from the bonds which she had elected to accept as her share, which made it impossible to find a buyer who might be found if all the coupons were attached. As her brothers had received bonds of the same kind with the coupons that belonged to them, she did not see why coupon-less bonds should be surrendered on her. Mr. Barker said all the coupons had been accounted for that had been found in the hundreds of bonds and coupons in Dr. Roberts' safe deposit vault. Mr. Barker waved his hands at some of her suggestions, and both he and Danforth E. Ainsworth, of counsel for Executor Lown, laughed when she said that any sane man could work out a scheme of distribution that would be explicit. The hearing was continued in the afternoon. Howard Chipm appeared for Miss Frances Roberts, and the other counsel in the case were the same who have appeared in other recent hearings.

Mr. Lake's Will Filed.

The will of Vernon D. Lake of this city was filed in a station for probate was issued returnable April 4. To his son, Emerson J. Lake, the testator gives a bond and mortgage given by Grace H. Herzog and owned by him. To Virgil B. Van Wageningen he gives $2,500 in trust for the benefit of Nita Hammer during her lifetime, and at her death he gives such principal sum to Vernon Hammer, her son, or to her next of kin in case of Vernon Hammer's death. To his granddaughter, Hazel, daughter of Emerson J. Lake, he gives $2,500. The sum of $2,500 is given to Mr. Van Wageningen in trust for Vernon Hammer, to be paid when he becomes 21 years of age, and in case of his death such sum is given to Elizabeth Lake, his daughter-in-law. Bequests of $2,500 each are given to his sister, Georgie Longyear, wife of Biting Longyear, and to his sister, Orvelia Eltinge, wife of Lamont Eltinge. The balance of the estate he gives to his brother, Franklin R. Lake, of Durango, Colorado. Virgil B. Van Wageningen is appointed executor. The will was executed June 1, 1916, and witnessed by E. L. Angle and Miss Helen A. Jones. The value of the real estate is more than $5,000 and there is more than $5,000 of personal property. Judge Jenkins appeared for the executor.

Mrs. Dimmick's Will Probated.

The will of Mrs. Mary O. Dimmick of this city, whose provisions have heretofore been published, was admitted to probate. F. J. R. Clarke is the executor. The will was executed January 9, 1915, and witnessed by Judge Betts and Christopher Snyder. The value of the real estate is $5,500 and the personal property amounts to upwards of $50,000. Judge Betts appeared for the executor.

STONE RIDGE.

Stone Ridge, April 4.—The Rev. Mr. Shafer will speak in the Reformed Church both morning and evening of Sunday, April 8th. Mr. Shafer is a returned missionary from Japan and will speak upon his work. In the evening his address will be illustrated by pictures. The campaign for the every member canvass among all those interested in the Reformed Church is being pushed by the members of the consistory. On the first Sunday in May, teams of men will go out two by two and endeavor to see every member of the church and secure their subscriptions to the funds of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Lebert entertained a number of friends at dinner on Saturday evening. Mrs. John Ballard has returned to Easton, Pa.

A play entitled "Uncle Jack" will be given in the Grange Hall on Tuesday evening, April 17. This play has a cast of seven characters and everyone in the cast is a favorite. So everyone should try his or her best to be at the Grange Hall on the above date. The synopsis, etc., will be published later. Proceeds for the benefit of the M. E. Church.

Paper From Bark of Tree.

The natives in some parts of India employ various ethers in the attempt to supply their own paper. The Village due Papier, a suburb of Hanoi, owes its name to the fact that most of its 2,000 or 3,000 inhabitants make paper from the bark of a small "paper tree," a species of mulberry, found on the Black river in Upper Tonkin.

American Mineral Oil

Use of Mineral Oil.

Dr. Le Tanneur contributes to the Paris Medical some practical points in the use of mineral oil in constipation. The oil, he says, is in no way digested or even modified by the juices of the stomach and intestines. It acts as a lubricant and nothing else, though it tends to heal abrasions of the intestinal wall caused by rough particles of food. The New York Medical Journal says mineral oil should be taken either before breakfast or after dinner, two table-spoonfuls being a dose. Its use should be continued every day for at least a fortnight, when the bowels will continue to work naturally without it. For the mineral oil is in no sense a cathartic, but it will cure constipation.—Kingston Daily Freeman, February 17, 1917.

ADVANCE ON BAGDAD.

THE ADVANCE ON BAGDAD.

One of the first photographs to be received in this country showing the activities of General Maude's British forces in Mesopotamia is the armies that recaptured Kut-el-Amara, routed the Turks and then drove them in disorder beyond Bagdad, capturing that ancient city of the Caliphs. The photograph was made by a British cavalry, followed by British infantry, crossed the Tigris river for the second time in the advance on Bagdad, under heavy fire from the Turks. Part of General Maude's forces are now forcing a portion of the Turkish army up the Dajla river towards the Persian border while the remainder is pursuing the main body of Turks beyond Bagdad.

SENATORS INSIST ON RIGHT TO TALK

Flood-Martin Resolution Will be Adopted, But Not Until Many Speeches Have Been Made—House to Take Matter up Thursday.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 4.—Evidence that it would be late tonight or tomorrow before a vote will be reached on the Flood-Martin state of war resolution multiplied this afternoon as the senate debated the measure.

The great majority of the members favored the resolution and its passage was a foregone conclusion. But most of them wanted to be heard and to place themselves before the country as supporting the president in a cause that they declared just.

The first speech in opposition came from Senator Vandam of Mississippi, who declared that he opposed war and would vote against the resolution.

Senator Stone, chairman of the foreign relations committee, characterized the resolution as the "greatest national blunder in our history," and declared he gladly would lay down his life to prevent "this mistake." It was not believed that on the final ballot more than eight votes would be cast against the resolution. Although Senator La Follette had been expected to endeavor to prevent consideration of the resolution by parliamentary tactics, he did not do so.

In the house opposition by Representatives King of Illinois and Cooper of Wisconsin, prevented Chairman Flood calling up the resolution which his committee had reported favorably by a vote of 17 to 3, and it was formally agreed that consideration of it will begin at ten o'clock tomorrow without any limitation of debate. This agreement was a disappointment to administration leaders as they had confidently planned to have the resolution approved by both houses before nightfall tomorrow.

Patriotic Instructor Instructs.

The following notice has been sent to The Freeman for publication:

"I wish to ask everyone to raise our flag at sunrise and lower it at sunset and not let it touch the ground under any consideration. Raise it three times before tying and three times before lowering.

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, April 4.—Peter Mitchell Inn, Middletown, spent Monday in Ellenville and interviewed several applicants for positions as waitresses and other help for the inn. Many friends were glad to greet Mr. Mitchell.

Arthur Penny of Middletown is spending several days in town looking after his property interests. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shepherd are to return to their home at Aurora, Ill., on Thursday, after spending several months with Mrs. Shepherd's mother, Mrs. Jane Frear, on Church street.

Mr. John Armstrong and daughters, the Misses Florence and Nedra, left for their home at Newburgh on Tuesday. Many friends regret the departure of this family from town, who have spent many years in the village.

Boyd Suffer of Elmira spent Sunday with Ellenville friends.

Miss Sadie M. Porter of Brooklyn is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert V. Porter.

Mrs. Walter M. Brown will entertain the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. Church at her home on Warren street Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The members of the Standard Berrers are to be entertained by Miss Lillie Powers at her home on Hickory street Saturday evening.

Several members of the Boy Scouts hiked to Grahamsville on Saturday last to attend an entertainment given by the Boy Scouts of that place in the evening. They spent the night, were royally entertained and hiked home on Sunday.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered on Easter Sunday morning at the Reformed Church by the pastor, the Rev. Walter S. Maines. There will also be reception of new members on confession of faith or by certificate. There will be special Easter music.

Miss Carolyn Clark sang very effectively a soprano solo entitled, "Open the Gate of the Temple," at the M. E. Church Sunday evening, and the pastor, the Rev. W. H. Moser, delivered a very excellent sermon to a large congregation. There will be no Easter services at the church, but the Sunday school session will be held as usual.

Preparations are now going on for the concert to be given Easter Monday evening at the high school auditorium point to a very attractive entertainment in "Musical Milestones," the first public concert to be given by the Ellenville Musical Club. The public here have always accorded good music encouraging patronage. "Musical Milestones," the music of different periods, those taking part being dressed in the costume of that period. A program which combines novelty and charm truly may it be said that "Music hath charms," and the aim of the members of this club is to give worth-while musical entertainment for all who attend.

Ellenville is certainly alive with patriotism. Old Glory is displayed in prominent places nearly all if not quite all every business place and residence throughout the entire village. The Star Spangled Banner is kept flying continually and will be kept so until the crisis is met and successfully passed. "Long May it Wave on the Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave."

At the meeting of the village trustees Monday evening important business was transacted. The resignation of a member of the water commission, Alfred Catherwood, was received and Irving Ostrander elected to fill vacancy. Other important matters were transacted.

Wawarsing Chapter, O. E. S., very happily celebrated Flag night at their rooms in Masonic building, on Monday night. There was a large attendance of members and they had as their guests members of Masonic Lodge and the Chapter with visiting delegation from Clinton Chapter, Kingston, which included the worthy matron and Miss Grace V. Merrill and Samuel Scudder. The rooms were made beautiful with their decorations of large and small American flags. It was a memorable occasion and one long to be remembered for the seriousness of the occasion. The lady speaker of the evening was Miss Merrill, who delivered a very excellent address to the ladies of the O. E. S., and it was most heartily received by all attending. The ladies of the local chapter gave a very commendable flag drill. Speeches were made by Mr. Scudder, C. H. Murray, H. W. Coons and Rev. H. P. Hobson, D. D., and the main speech of the evening was delivered by Rev. W. H. Moser on the subject patriotism, which is pronounced to have been a most able and masterly address, one of the most able ever delivered on a like occasion. Dr. Moser received very hearty applause. The above program was followed by an elaborate banquet, faultlessly served by a committee of ladies as appointed from the chapter. Following the banquet a very pleasing entertainment was given, which included a vocal solo by Mrs. W. S. Maines, a reading by the worthy matron, Mrs. Nellie V. Sawyer, a vocal duet by Mrs. Elizabeth Frear and Miss Carolyn Clark, a trio by Mrs. John R. DeVany, Mrs. Frear and Rev. W. S. Maines, all of which were enjoyed. The ladies of the home chapter are to be commended for the very delightful affair, proving to be a very profitable affair as well, one not to be forgotten.

The wedding of Elbert Westbrook of Ellenville and Miss Ione Kortright of Monticello, N. Y., was solemnized at the M. E. Church person-ally Saturday evening, Rev. W. H. Moser performing the ceremony. Mr. Westbrook is an officer at the New York Eastern Reformatory at Nanuet, and he has chosen for his bride a most estimable young lady. Mr. and Mrs. Westbrook are to reside on Essex street, Ellenville, and they have the best wishes of many friends.

Too Much to Expect.

HOW TO START UP YOUR PLACE EARLY IN SPRING.

It would be well to look from time to time to the bulb beds or rows, the strawberry bed and other growths which were covered with straw early in the winter, to be sure the mulch has not blown away. Repeated freezing and thawing of the ground unless the bed has been carefully mulched, while a few warm, thawing days may cause tulips and other bulbs to send up shoots if not mulched.

Look out for rabbits in young orchards. Head them off by means of preventive measures if they have not already attacked the trees. If they have covered the wounds they have made in the bark with grafting wax, with some kind of waterproof paint or even with mud thickly applied. As has been stated before now, a thick coat of whitewash to which has been added enough crude carbolic acid to give the mixture a strong odor will keep rabbits away and will also prevent injury by field mice. The acid in the mixture, carried down the trunks of the trees by rain and impregnating the soil around the roots, will also help materially to keep borers and other larval pests away from the trees.

One suburbanite, keeping chickens on rather a large scale, recently tried the experiment of furnishing the pullets in one colony house with warm water three times a day, while the same number of pullets of the same age and breed in another colony house were given only cold water. Each house contained fifty pullets. Within ten days after beginning the experiment the pullets receiving the warm water were laying at the rate of more than 50 per cent, the daily average number of eggs from them being twenty-nine, while the fifty pullets in the other house, getting only cold water, have never laid more than four or five eggs in any one day.

EXPOSED WATER PIPES.

How to Keep Them From Freezing in Cold Weather.

Exposed water pipes are apt to freeze in winter, causing much annoyance, which may be prevented by covering them with the following mixture, says a contributor to Popular Science Monthly: To a solution of thin boiled starch add sawdust until the mixture forms a thick paste. A fine sieve may be used to clear this sawdust from lumps.

Heavy cord is first wrapped around the pipe, spacing the turns about one-half inch. A one-quarter inch layer of the mixture is smeared on and allowed to dry; then a second layer is put on and smoothed up. The string acts as an anchor to make the coating adhere to the pipe closely. Whitewash or paint may be used to give a finish for inside pipes, but for outside work cover the coating with hot tar. If it is desired to have a very neat covering wrap the sawdust coating with cloth or canvas, applying it in narrow strips like a bandage and painting the outside surface. An even coating of the sawdust is necessary when covering with cloth.

NEW DEATH TESTS.

How to Tell When Life Has Actually Ceased.

An Italian scientist describes the following three new methods of determining the cessation of life:

The first is the ether test. A drop of ether is instilled into the conjunctival sac of one eye. If this is followed by a reddening of the conjunctiva it affords proof that the circulation is intact and that life is still present. The second test consists in the subcutaneous injection of fluorescein, which, if the individual is still living, is soon followed by a yellowish coloring of the skin; and mucous membrane of the mouth and particularly of the frenum of the tongue show this coloration most distinctly. A negative result is obtained in cases of marked slowing or enfeeblement of the circulation.

The third test consists in direct exploration of the heart by means of a stylus. This is introduced through a small incision in one of the intercostal spaces. Any movement in the heart is communicated to the stylus.

How to Walk and Grow Thin is the Main Question.

Here is a simple method to reduce weight which has been used with great success:

Rise early and take a half hour walk in the air, walking a steady but alert gait. On returning home drink a cupful of hot water with plenty of salt. After a light breakfast, leaving the table not quite satisfied, take a hand working vacuum cleaner or carpet sweeper with a long handle and keep up a steady, long reaching movement. This reduces the tops of the arms and removes the fat about the neck. Then take a duster and dust the legs of chairs and stretch to the tops of doors to get a steady bending and stretching movement. The treatment takes about two hours a morning, and by abstemious eating and occasional cupfuls of hot water with salt during the day, also one on retiring, the desired result is obtained and the health improved.

Cinder Nine Defeated.

The St. Joseph's team defeated the Cinder Nine in a game of basketball Wednesday morning, resulting in a score of 8 to 11. The batteries for St. Joseph's were Joseph Cassidy, catcher, Edward Gainer, pitcher, For Cinder Nine, Hen Sheffield, catcher, George Schoonmaker, pitcher.

BRUSH FIRES KEEP FIREMEN BUSY

Eight calls for the fire department within twenty-four hours has kept the fire department busy. All of the alarms were caused by burning grass and brush and all except one were still alarms.

Tuesday's alarms were as follows: 1:25 p. m. (still alarm)—Grass fire at Third avenue and More street. 1:30 p. m. (still alarm)—Grass fire on West Chestnut street hill.

2:40 p. m. (box 91)—Grass fire on lots of Walter S. Darling in the rear of Lounsbury Place and Johnston avenue. 3:05 p. m. (still alarm)—Grass fire on Linderman avenue. 5:02 p. m. (still alarm)—Grass fire near Benedictine Sanitarium.

This morning's alarms were for grass fires at St. Mary's Cemetery and in the woods at the head of Gage street.

Only a slight breeze is necessary to cause grass fires to spread rapidly and to get beyond control. Property owners who are burning over their fields or brush lots are therefore urged by the department to exercise the utmost care in starting such fires. The starting of fires by boys is unauthorized and fires started by boys will be followed by drastic action.

"A FEW" DOESN'T MEAN LEGISLATURE

Mr. Undermyer Endeavors to Twist Mayor Mitchell's Meaning Into Result to Legislature—Recess in Hearing.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, April 4.—In an evident endeavor to make a statement, credited to Mayor Mitchell, reflect against the entire state senate, Attorney Samuel Undermyer at the closing of the morning session of the proceedings in the Wagner-Mitchell controversy, pinned down the mayor to the fact that he had said that "the action of a few damn fools may block the whole Jamaica Bay improvement scheme." Mayor Mitchell denied that he had used the words "at Albany" in connection with the above statement.

"On its face it was an insult to the legislature, was it not?" inquired Mr. Undermyer.

"I don't think so." Undermyer then asked the mayor if he had made any attempt to publicly declare that this statement had not been an attempt to insult the legislature and received the reply that he had not thought this necessary, since he had told Senator Wagner on February 17 that he had not meant it as an insult.

The mayor declared upon cross-examination that he thought the senators had made a mistake in not passing the Rookaway Point bill by reason of their not understanding of its purpose.

At 12:35 p. m. a recess was taken until 2:30 p. m.

ROOSEVELT OFFER NOT ACCEPTED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 4.—The offer of Col. Theodore Roosevelt to raise and command a division to be sent to the battle front in France cannot be accepted by the war department, it was learned today. The only way in which the division could be accepted is through a special act of congress and officials here such a course would encourage politicians all over the country to seek similar honors to the great detriment of the army.

CALL MEETING OF CLINTON GUARDS

All members of the Clinton Guards are urged to be present at the armory Thursday night, as important business will come up at this time.

WEBSTER HEADS CORNELL HOSE

Well Known Fire Company Held Annual Meeting, Followed by a Banquet and Smoker Tuesday Evening.

Grove Webster, Sr., was re-elected president of Cornell Hose Company at the annual meeting held at the engine rooms on Tuesday evening, and all of the other officers were re-elected as follows: Vice president, John T. Bond; secretary, Andrew J. Murphy; treasurer, Grove Webster, Jr.; foreman, Edgar Breitbacher; first assistant, Casper Ketterer; second assistant, Samuel Beyer; commissary, Casper Ketterer; and janitor, LaRue Weber. The trustees elected were Edward Albrecht, Edward Weber and J. G. Herdman. Casper Ketterer was elected a delegate to the H. V. V. F. A., and John Arnold, Sr., was elected delegate to the Kingston Fire Fund Association.

Following the business session a banquet was served and a smoker held. The company decided to give a dinner for the members and their wives in the near future. The company at the present time is in a flourishing condition.

PLEADS WITH REPUBLICAN CONGRESSMEN TO DEFEND NATION'S HONOR.

William R. Wilcox, chairman of the Republican National Committee, who rushed to Washington for the opening of the Sixty-fifth Congress to plead with Republican Congressmen not to make themselves petty by disputes over petty patronage or trivial technicalities, but to devote themselves to the higher subject of maintaining national honor and national preparedness against German aggressions.

The Brotherhood of the Reformed Church has started to put into reality what has been the dream and talk of the village for the past generation; a lecture room addition to the church. In a series of meetings President Andrew Taylor has invited each society and auxiliary of the church to the meetings of the Brotherhood, the proposition of starting a building fund has been broached to them, and every society has pledged its support to the raising of it. An account has been opened in the Savings Bank to the credit of the church building fund, and as a result of the Lincoln Birthday celebration and the entertainment given by the Bureau Society and the Brotherhood, jointly, an initial deposit has been made to an amount which indicates the enthusiasm existing in such an improvement to our village. Every society of the church will be given an opportunity to co-operate with the Brotherhood on various occasions to swell this fund. Contributions received will be mentioned from time to time. The addition as planned will be as large as the church itself, forming the latter "T" with the body of the church building. A large stage and kitchen will be one of the useful features of the new addition.

On next Wednesday evening, the Ladies Aid Society of the Reformed Church, in co-operation with the Brotherhood of the Reformed Church will serve a "jimmy" supper in the basement of the church. As certain features of the Jimmy supper are to be a surprise to those who attend, no further mention would be prudent at this time.

The Brotherhood of the Reformed Church held its regular monthly meeting in the church last night. The officers of the Sunday school and Christian Endeavor were present by invitation from President Taylor and their cooperation secured to aid in the raising of the building fund.

Plans were laid for an entertainment on Decoration Day appropriate to the day, the proceeds to go to the building fund.

The choir of the Reformed Church will meet after prayer meeting for their last rehearsal before Easter, Thursday evening at 8:30. Special music will be rendered by the choir both morning and evening services. The authors rendered by the choir on Palm Sunday were sung in a manner that deserves great credit. At the evening service last Sunday Andrew Taylor and William A. Vanderwer, were installed as Deacons, and George Fairbrother, Elliot Hotelling and William B. Hotelling, as Elders, by the pastor, Rev. Homer L. Shetter.

HE CUT A BEE TREE

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"It was Sunday mornin'. My wife said to me:

"Zeb, this is my day for readin' the Bible, but I have lost my spectacles somewhere an' can't find 'em jist now. Wouldn't you like to read a chapter for me?"

"I don't feel like readin' nuthin'," I replied. "I've got a mean streak on me an' ain't fit to read to anybody. 'I wishin' this mornin' that I was somebody's dawg."

"Mebbe you'll feel better with the Bible in your hand," she coaxed. But it was no use. I felt meaner and meaner, an' I waved her back to the cabin. After a few minits mo' it struck me that I would go up on the side of the mountings an' cut down a bee tree that I knowed of. I had bin to it three or four times, an' as it was a big hollow tree I was shore that it held a heap o' honey. I could sell that honey fur cash in town.

"I charpened up the ax an' was about to move off when the ole woman cum out agin an' said: 'Zeb, you are goin' to wander in the woods on the Lord's day, an' jist what you're goin' to do with that ax I don't know. But it's all wickedness, Zeb. Everybody order respect the Sabbath day an' keep it holy."

"My meanness was so mean that I shouldered the ax an' whistled to my dawg an' walked away widout another word."

"It was in the month of September, an' that had bin a frost the night befo'. The chill of the mornin' kept the bees at home, an' not a bee could I see when I got to the tree. I knowed they were there, however, an' I pulled off my coat an' went to work. I was goin' to leave it fall across a big log and split itself wide open. If that was a heap o' honey that I would go back to the cabin an' git a washin' to hold it. Mebbe I wouldn't feel so mean then an' I would as the

MISS HENRIETTA F. H. RIED.

WALL STREET'S HIGHEST SALARIED WOMAN.

There are many women employed in Wall Street, but there aren't very many of them who draw salaries approaching that of Miss Henrietta F. H. Ried, secretary and treasurer of the forty million dollar Bush Terminal Co. and the highest paid woman in Wall Street. Miss Ried draws a yearly stipend of $25,000.

In addition to being an officer of the company, Miss Ried is a member of the executive board, composed of three officers, who work out the labor, traffic, financial and other problems that confront the company. Miss Ried is credited with having brought to an end the recent dock workers' strike which threatened to tie up the continental and overseas commerce of New York. Miss Ried was recently elected a director of the Salesmen's Club of America, the only woman holding an executive position in that nation-wide organization.

Why Plates Are Round.

All our plates are circular in shape. Now, a square or oval plate would be just as convenient. Is there any reason why plates should be of their present shape? It seems that if we dig into the far past we may discover the cause. Our remote ancestors ate their food off flat pieces of wood cut from a tree trunk. The tree trunk being cylindrical in shape, the earliest plates were therefore roughly circular, and the shape has been used ever since.

wife to cum back wid me an' help carry the tub.

"If it had bin a hot mornin' the bees would have cum buzzin' wid the first stroke of the ax, but as it was I didn't see narry an insect till after the tree fell. She split open jist as I hoped fur an' then about a million of those bees cum out at once. Mebbe they didn't see me at first an' that was the reason they sailed round an' round in a great cloud. I reckoned it was five minits befo' the first bee lighted on me. He wasn't mad, an' he didn't sting. Then another an' another came, an' befo' I could count a hundred a quart of the pecky varmints had settled on me.

"Mebbe you know 'miff about bees, stranger, to know that when they settle on you you mustn't go to fightin' back. If you keep mighty quiet they will all leave when they git tired an' no harm will be done to you. These bees, an' that seemed to be thousands of 'em, settled down on me out of bewilderment.

"Stranger, I may live to be a hundred years old, but I'll never be in any worse situation. The weight of those insects must have bin twenty pounds or over, an' some of them crawled down the back of my neck an' seem crawled up the legs of my trousers. I had to call up all my grit to keep from yellin'. When I looked ahead an' thought they might be wid me fur hours an' hours I wanted to cry like a boy.

"You see, sub, I couldn't expect any man to be wanderin' through the woods, an', as fur my wife, she was a mile away, an' had she wanted to search fur me she would not know whar to look. I figgered it out an' reckoned I was in fur the whole day.

"A full hour had gone by an' the bees had settled down on me as if fur a long rest when I heard sumthin' movin' through the brush. It might be a bar who had smelled the honey an' was comin' fur his share of it, or it might be a coon or a woodcock. I dared not turn my head to see if I could make out what caused the noise, but by an' by, whate'er animal it was, it got skered an' moved away. I reckoned it was half an hour after this when I heard soft footsteps an' was never so happy in my life when heard the voice of the ole woman sayin' to me:

"Zeb, I was lookin' fur you, an' I found you some time ago. You seem to be in a bad fix."

"I am," I replied, "an' what am I gwine to do about it?"

"Zeb, have you got over your meanness? Is it all gone?"

"Every darned bit of it."

"Well, I was here befo' an' seen jist how you was fixed. I brung up wid me this time a big torch, an' as soon as I kin strike a match I will light it. I have sprinkled it over with kerosene an' an' gwine to cum close to you an' hold it out so that the bees will git the fumes an' drop off dead. Don't you go to movin' round much or I may set your clothes afire. You had better shut your mouth pretty tight, fur I sprinkled on some sulphur as well as kerosene."

"Say, stranger, that was a neat piece of bizness. It took a good half hour, but the last bee was finally reached an' lay dead on the leaves at my feet. Then I gave my wife the tightest huggin' fur a year. She had done it all, an' nobody could have done better. I was kiest' her half the time."

Way back to the cabin to git the tub, an' we had it even full of honey when we got through with that ole bee tree. I have kept my promises to her. No mo' humin' on Sundays for me."

B. P. W. HAD BUSY AFTERNOON MEET

Daylight Saving Movement for Street Workers Approved—Increased Pay for Teams is Voted—Street Railway Company Must Get Permits Before Tearing Up Streets.

Tanks—not the kind on the battlefield but the source of supply for gasoline consumers—took up much of the time of the Board of Public Works at Tuesday afternoon's meeting. The matter first came up when the Hon. Joseph M. Fowler and Mr. Brown of the Brown Auto Supply Company of Clinton avenue asked for permission to erect two gasoline pumps on each side of Clinton avenue, one in front of the Brown store and the other diagonally across the street. Mayor Canfield and Commissioners Burgevin and Tammann discussed the possibility of the street becoming congested with cars awaiting gas lined upon either side of the trolley track, and finally decided to grant a permit, revocable at the pleasure of the board, for both pumps. Connections will be made by driving a pipe under the street, the work to be supervised by the city engineer and street superintendent.

John Kinkaid asked permission to place a pump on the curb in front of 43 Hurley avenue and William Kemble sought one for the curb in front of 292 Wall street. Both applications were granted with the board reserving the right to revoke same.

Light on W. Chestnut Street.

C. Rodman Stull, assistant manager of the Kingston Gas and Electric Company, asked the board to fix more definitely the location of an electric light to be placed at or near 99 West Chestnut street. Commissioner Burgevin wanted the location referred to John D. Schoonmaker and Judge John Van Etten but his colleagues delegated the matter to him to take up with lighting company and the property owners.

Complaints of Two Streets.

Terry Brothers sent in a complaint regarding impassable conditions on First avenue between the Miller and Weishaupt properties and the street superintendent was directed to improve same. A complaint from the same company regarding a washout on Locust avenue, near Devil's Lake, was similarly disposed of.

Contracts for Cement.

Walter S. Darling and Richard Tappen sent in acceptances of a contract for supplying concrete. Each will supply 1,100 bags at a price of $2.07 the coming season.

R. R. to Aid in Repairs.

One of the railroad companies sharing in the expense of the Washington avenue viaduct maintenance reported that it had nothing to do with repairs to the approaches or roadway, that being up to the city. City Engineer Codwise reported a later conference at which the U. and D. railroad and the O. and W. had agreed to fix the concrete work where cracks had appeared. The city will fill in the cracks at expansion joints with asphaltum, the street superintendent and city engineer being so directed by the board.

Trolley Company Criticized.

Commissioner Tammann reported upon the tearing up of the Strand near the power house by the Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company, saying that the street was in a bad condition as a result and the trolley patrons were obliged to walk a considerable distance in order to get a car. The work should have been done when the roadway was being built, he believed. Later a resolution was adopted that the railroad company must first notify the city and receive permission before it started work tearing up any streets. The company is placing ties in that section of the street improved last summer.

Daylight Saving Here.

Daylight saving has hit Kingston. The street employees under the jurisdiction of the board, 55 in number, petitioned for a shift in the present working hours of from 8 to 5 to be begun at 7 a. m. and quit at 4 p. m. On motion of Commissioner Tammann the petition was granted, the new schedule to take effect April 9th.

More Money for Horses.

How the high cost of living has hit horses was shown in the next petition for an increase of pay for teams in the employ of the city. Grain and other horse feed is away up, the petitioners stated, and they asked that allowance be made therefor. The present scale is $3.25 for a single horse and $4.25 for a team. It was finally voted that the pay be increased to $4.50 for the single outfit and $4.75 for the teams, a boost of 25 cents per horse. The petitioners were: James Cramer, Ward Rowe, Emerick Schilling, Harry J. Beatty, Joseph Wendland, Nicholas Bruck, Abram Weeks, Fred Schloft, Bernard Fomer, Francis X. Fitzgerald, Joseph Schrowang, John Crook, Frank Lunter, Patrick Flanagan, Henry Melbert, Ernest Hicks and Frank Grant. The city is at present employing 14 single rigs and five teams with this force added to as the season for road work is fairly under way. The increase may mean in the neighborhood of $2,000. Most of the horses are employed for all but three months of the year.

Several Improvements.

On motion of Commissioner Burgevin, it was voted to repair Center street from Clinton to Furnace, to place a catch basin at Maiden Lane and Green street; another at the southeast corner of Crown and John street; put two loads of crushed stone on Lucas avenue and place a crosswalk on the north side of Pine street over Greenhill avenue. The street superintendent was authorized to place a catch basin on Water street near St. Mary's street if he finds one necessary after investigation.

Bins for Crusher Plant.

City Engineer Codwise was directed to prepare specifications for bins for crushed stone at the Wilbur plant, bids to be asked for construction of same at an early date as the city is in need of the No. 2 stone for which these bins are intended.

Garbage Collection Up.

In the matter of the garbage collection, a resolution was passed authorizing the street superintendent to issue permits for the same and also providing that applicants must fill out blanks and provide covered, non-leaking carriers for sanitary handling of same.

Hurley Avenue Work.

The matter of progress on the state highway contract covering Hurley avenue was acted upon. Secretary Linson being directed to write State Highway Commissioner Edwin Duffey asking that the contract be started on work as early as possible. The street is now torn up awaiting the laying of concrete.

SOUTH RONDOUT.

South Rondout, April 4.—Our pastor preached his last sermon on Sunday. The morning theme was "Ideals." The text, "As for me I will behold thy face in righteousness, I shall be satisfied when I awake in thy likeness." Psalms 17, 15. We all are influenced by our ideals for good or ill and our ideals are formed by association with some person who has impressed our fancy at former periods of life. Many boyish ideals are discarded as man comes to maturity and sense. Still unless we are careful to correct them often we will follow that which is to folly and ruin. The Jews who shouted "Hosanna" when Jesus rode into Jerusalem on that first Palm Sunday were dazzled by the ideal of a King Solomon and perceived not the lowly Jesus riding to sacrifice himself rather than to conquest on a war horse. The evening theme was "Slaying the Hands." The text was, "But Moses's hands were heavy and Aaron and Hur stayed his hands, the one on the one side and the other on the other side." Ex. 17, 12. So we can all stay the hands of our president at this critical time, showing our true patriotism, and so we should all give our new pastor a very cordial welcome and support him faithfully in all his undertakings. BE CLEARWATER ANSWERS QUERIES on Judicial Procedure in New York State for Benefit of California Bar of Interest to Laymen as Well as Lawyers.

The Hon. A. E. Bolton of San Francisco, president of the California State Bar Association addressed a number of questions to the Hon. Charles Evans Hughes, president of the New York State Bar Association relative to the administration of justice in the Appellate Courts of this state, which Judge Hughes because of his long absence upon the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States at Washington, referred to Judge Clearwater, to answer.

Some of the questions and Judge Clearwater's answers are of interest to the layman as well as to the lawyer, and are here given:

Generally speaking, how long after a record is filed before a decision is finally reached?

A. In the Appellate Courts of the first instance known as our Appellate Division, is from three to six months; in the Court of Appeals, the Court of Last Resort, about eighteen months.

Must the court in all cases file a written opinion?

A. No.

How many judges are there in the Court of Last Resort?

A. At present, four.

Do they all sit together, or do they divide into departments?

A. In the Court of Appeals, seven judges sit together; the three not sitting devote that interim to the examination of cases which they heard while sitting.

Do they favor oral argument?

A. Yes.

Has oral argument been found by the Appellate Court to be a satisfactory method of presentation?

A. Yes.

Does the bar favor oral argument?

A. Yes.

Generally speaking, about how long after submission is a decision reached?

A. Between thirty and sixty days.

Do the judges reach a conclusion in conference, and then assign to a justice to write the opinion, or is the matter referred to a justice to write an opinion, and then passed around for the concurrence of enough of the members of the court to give it effect?

A. The judges reach a conclusion in conference, and then assign to a justice to write the opinion. The opinion is then passed to each of the justices who participated in the hearing of the case. Either they concur, dissent or write a separate opinion which may concur in the result, but differ as to the grounds upon which the conclusion is predicated.

About how many contested cases does the court dispose of each year?

A. In the year 1916 the intermediate Appellate Courts, known as Appellate Divisions, disposed of 2,841 contested cases; the Court of Appeals, the Court of Last Resort, disposed of 680 contested cases.

Is there any complaint at the bar as to the length of opinions?

A. No.

Is there any complaint on behalf of the court as to the length of briefs?

A. Occasionally, but not frequently.

In about what per cent of cases are re-hearings granted?

A. In so few as to be negligible.

What salary is paid the judges of your Court of Last Resort?

A. $13,700.

For what term are they elected?

A. Fourteen years.

Do you have any difficulty in obtaining legal learning and ability on the bench?

A. It is becoming increasingly difficult.

Does the bar in any way influence the election of justices, and if so in what manner?

A. Our various Bar Associations frankly express their opinion as to the qualifications of candidates, and if a notoriously unfit candidate be nominated, defeat him.

Are they nominated by political parties, or in what manner?

A. By primary ballot.

Is appeal made expensive or otherwise?

A. Aside from the fees paid to counsel, which are not taxable against an unsuccessful party, an appeal is not expensive.

Where jurisdiction of the court is dependent upon the amount, what is the amount?

A. It is not thus dependent.

Have you an intermediate Appellate Court? If so state generally to what extent.

A. We have four intermediate Appellate Courts of the first rank, known as Appellate Divisions, which are composed of from five to seven judges each. They review the cause both upon the law and the facts. An examination of the decisions of our Appellate Divisions, which doubtless you can consult in your state library, and of the provisions of our Code of Civil Procedure, which will fully advise you regarding the constitution and powers of these intermediate appellate tribunals.

Was it initiated as a relief to the Court of Last Resort?

A. To some extent they were.

Has the result been satisfactory?

A. Fairly so.

Are its decisions final or subject to review by the higher court?

A. In many cases where the judgment of the intermediate court is unanimous, there is no review. Many of our lawyers of the first rank are of the opinion that the existing right of appeal should be further limited and restricted.

Are you able to get as high grade men upon the bench of the intermediate courts as on the bench of the Court of Last Resort?

A. Yes.

THE DOCTOR'S BILL

It Occupies the Attention of the County Court.

At the opening of county court this morning the actions brought by Alexander Siegel against Richard Lashier, to recover on promissory notes, and an action to recover on contract, were put over the term upon payment of witness fees as Judge William D. Brimmer, Jr., the attorney for the defendant, is ill.

Newton Fessenden appears for the plaintiff. The actions involve some $500. The motion to put the cases over the term was made by Mayor Campbell and opposed by Mr. Fessenden.

A jury was taken in the case of Dr. Cyrus H. Baker against John Demler, an action to recover $116 for professional services. Newton Fessenden appears for Dr. Baker and William H. Grogan for the defendant.

Must Not Throw Stones.

This morning a young lad was summoned to appear before Recorder Lang and explain how he happened to hit a little boy, four years old, with a stone. The boy who threw the stone, 14 years old. He said he had thrown a stone at his brother, who was teasing him, and did not mean to hit the boy, who received the stone in the back of his head. Recorder Lang warned the stone thrower that if he was caught throwing stones again he would be severely dealt with. The man whose boy was hit with the stone did not care to have the stone thrower punished at this time but warned him to behave himself in the future.

Suffrage Census Taken.

Word was received in Kingston today by local suffrage leaders that the New York State Woman Suffrage Party, with the Republican and Democratic State organizations, has been appointed to take the war census provided for by the Robinson Bill which was signed by the governor last week. The purpose of the census is to ascertain by a personal canvass what each man and woman in the state can do for the country in case of need.

Maxwell Quality has been and will be rigidly maintained in spite of the big and constant increases in the cost of materials.

That's the Maxwell policy, fixed and immutable as the Rock of Gibraltar.

For years the Maxwell Company has been proving it in the Maxwell car, which has come to be recognized as the "World's Greatest Motor Car Value."

—as the car of power—of ease of control—of stability—of endurance—of economy.

200,000 satisfied Maxwell owners attest to the success of that policy.

More than three thousand Maxwell dealers owe their business stability to the fulfillment of that policy.

The First Consideration is—Maxwell Owners' Protection

No matter what other motor car manufacturers may do in the face of the greatly increased cost of raw materials.

—the Maxwell Company is going to maintain the high Maxwell standard of quality and only make a slight increase in the cost of the car.

While we are sorry that there is any increase, it can't be helped—because the first consideration is Maxwell quality.

—the quality which has given the Maxwell the two world's non-stop records of 22,000 miles, the 1916 record, and 23,500 miles, the 1917 record, at amazingly high mileage per gallon of gasoline.

This Small Increase is Your Big Insurance Policy

If the Maxwell Company didn't make the increase, slight as it is, it would have to skimp here and there in materials, construction and refinements.

—and that the Maxwell Company will never do.

No manufacturer can make a car today for the same cost as he could a year ago.

The fact that the price of the Maxwell will be raised is your assurance that the Maxwell campaign is still putting the same quality into the car—your guarantee of still getting the "World's Greatest Motor Car Value."

In Fact, Better Value Than Ever Before

As a matter of fact, the Maxwell is now an even better "buy" than ever before.

Not because the model or design is changed in whole or in part.

—but because the Maxwell you buy today is the super-refinement of the original highly successful model of four years ago.

—the super-product which time and experience in manufacturing this powerful car have demonstrated to be right.

—the same proud Maxwell model which, in recent competitive tests held by the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale and Prof. Gallup of the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, proved itself the most economical of all the cars tested.

The Car That Everyman Can Own

Maxwell economy of upkeep has made it everyman's car. Thousands upon thousands of Maxwell owners have told us that their running costs are as little as six to eight dollars per month—an amount which the average man spends on casual luxuries.

The Maxwell gives an amazing mileage per gallon of gasoline. Instance, the world's non-stop record run of 22,000 miles, when a Maxwell stock car averaged 22 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Owens a World's Non-Stop Champion Car

There is no reason why you shouldn't. It's first price is small—far less, when you take into consideration its complete equipment and luxurious refinements than any other car made.

Then its cost of upkeep is so little as to make the cost of a family's ordinary luxuries extravagant by comparison.

With the power in its motor to make up hill and down dale like a level road.

—with the ease of control that makes driving sheer, troubleless pleasure.

—and with the stability and endurance that makes the Maxwell, not a one-season, but a many-season car.

—the Maxwell is beyond doubt the "World's Greatest Motor Car Value"—everyman's car.

May 1st, the New Price—$665—Goes Into Effect

But You do not have to pay the Increase in Price if you buy your Maxwell now.

GREAT PITCHERS NEVER IN NO-HIT GAME

Walter Johnson and Grover Alexander, the greatest pitchers in baseball today, have never entered the select circle of no-hit game.

Eddie Plank, one of the greatest southpaws of all time, never pitched a no-hit game.

No-hit games are rare in the majors, and still it is surprising that pitchers of the caliber of Plank, Johnson and Alexander, with years of service, have never been able to go through nine innings without a safe tap being made off their delivery.

Plank has been pitching winning ball for 16 years and has pitched several no-hit games. Johnson has a number of one and two hit games to his credit, as has Alexander.

ALEX IN SELECT SET

Grover Cleveland Alexander now ranks among the highest-paid players and managers in baseball. He has compromised with the owners of the Phillies and secured for $12,500 next season, which is $2,500 less than he was holding out for. He is the highest-salaried pitcher in the National league, receiving the same amount as does Walter Johnson, the American league's star. The lenders, as to salary, are:

Gilmour Dobie, the University of Detroit's new coach, holds the greatest record ever established by a baseball mentor. The next two years he coached the North Dakota Aggies, played eight games and no team was able to score a point against Dobie's team. In 1903 he went to Washington, where for nine seasons he coached teams that never went down to defeat.

"Ten-cent baseball is a thing of the past," we read. Oh, we dianno. A lot of it is likely to be played this year, even if the fans do pay more.

That Chase and Tris Speaker hit like demons in their leagues, but the Kaiser's batting average in those leagues under the sea has 'em faded.

The Toledo club will give a trial to a young shortstop fresh from high school by the name of Walter Leonard. He hails from Fort Recovery, O.

A lot of ball players are complaining about the cutting of their salaries this year, when all they would have bought with the money, anyway, would have been food and clothing.

A Peddling Partnership

By WARREN MILLER

Johnny Cosgrove, millionaire, determined to marry a girl who didn't know he was rich and at the same time a person of intrinsic worth. John was fond of an outdoor life, and his plan was influenced by this taste. He concluded to rig himself up as a peddler, travel through the country selling such articles as women need and thus make the acquaintance of some girl whom he could study in private. He bought an auto delivery wagon and stocked it with tin pans, pins and needles, hosiery, shoes, grid-irons and every article he could think of that a woman would want.

It was a bright spring morning when John's loaded auto was brought up before his house by his man Thomas, whom he had charged with procuring the outfit, and John, rigged out in a ready-made suit he had bought at a cheap clothing store and a faded straw hat, sat down and, taking the wheel, started on his tour.

"If I don't get a wife," he said to himself, "I'll at least enjoy myself." Then aloud to Thomas, "Forward to-day's mail to Waverly to Martin Irwin. I'll keep you posted where to send it from that on."

Johnny drove off, and a window ash on the opposite side of the street was closed at the same time. A few minutes later a girl emerged from a front door beneath the aforesaid window and hurried down the street.

Johnny struck the road to Waverly, then began to stop at houses along the way. He chatted the wives, chucked the children under the chin and otherwise made himself agreeable. The consequence was that he sold his goods readily, though he generally made his prices to suit purchasers. When night came he put up at the only hotel in Waverly.

In the morning he breakfasted on spring chicken—and after the arrival of the mail started again on his travels. He had not gone far before he heard the rattling of a machine behind him and pulled out to the right to let it go by. As it did so Johnny saw that its rear was got up to hold a sewing machine which was strapped down, and the car was driven by a young woman, comely, though plainly dressed, who called to him to know if the road held good and for how long. Johnny gave her the information she desired, and the two fell into conversation. The girl told Johnny that she was a sewing machine traveling agent. She also informed him that her father was comfortably off in this world's goods, but she didn't propose to sit around waiting for a husband and must have occupation.

"By Jove," exclaimed Johnny to himself, "that's the kind of girl I'm looking for!"

John kept on one side of the road, the girl on the other, the two moving side by side except when vehicles passed, at which time John fell behind.

"I wish," said John to her after awhile, "that we could make a double team of it, a joint stock concern, to take in peddler's goods and sewing machines."

"Oh, we couldn't do that," said the girl, who gave her name as Molly Sparks, "though I'd like to over so much. I sometimes feel afraid traveling on lonely roads."

"What's the objection to a partnership?" asked John.

"I don't think it would be exactly proper. People would take us for man and wife, and when they found we were not they'd talk."

John thought awhile, then proposed that they should lay out a route together for the next day, the girl to put her sewing machine in his motor-car. They would stop for the night at different hotels, but travel together during the day. The girl, with apparent reluctance, assented to the plan, and the next day they carried it out. But they paid more attention to each other than to peddling.

This method of travel now kept up until John was satisfied that he might go farther and fare worse. The girl was far above the ordinary entry lass, and John saw an action in marrying in his own mind.

John kept on one side of the road, the girl on the other, the two moving side by side except when vehicles passed, at which time John fell behind.

posed to her, but at first was refused on the ground that if she married a peddler her family would disown her. But John was bent on winning her and finally got her consent to marry him without saying anything about it at home. They could then travel together with more propriety.

They were married at a country church and by a country parson, and after the wedding John said they must have a rest from work and they must go to his home for awhile to the city. His wife consented, and he took her to his parental residence.

John looked at his bride, expecting to see astonishment depicted in her face. Instead, she laid aside her wraps as if she had always lived there.

"Didn't you think you were marrying a peddler?" he asked in wonder.

"No, I didn't. I knew I was marrying Johnny Cosgrove, millionaire."

"How did you know that?" asked John, aghast.

"I live a few doors down the street and have often seen you, though you didn't know me. I saw you drive away as a peddler. I didn't know what you were going for, but I thought it would be a good chance to go for you and take you in."

"Stuns!" said Johnny.

"No, you're not. I've got money of my own. I knew you were a good wick and thought I'd spare you, that's all. I'll make you a loving wife."

And she did.

HOTBED GARDENS.

Early vegetable crops have proved quite profitable in many instances in Oklahoma, says C. W. Rapp of the department of horticulture, Oklahoma Agricultural college. This is especially true of lettuce and radishes when planted in hotbeds or cold frames. For the extreme early crops a hotbed will be necessary, but lettuce and radishes are rather hardy and can be grown in a cold frame quite early in the season.

In most instances a bed of good, rich soil is ridged behind in this way and properly handled may be used, but is not necessary. The seed is sown and some form of protection is provided for severe weather.

Lettuce, radishes and other hardy vegetables, when planted in this way and properly handled, are frequently ready for use from four weeks to six weeks before those planted in the open.

GENERAL KURAPATKIN.
GERMANS PAID MILLIONS TO RUSSIAN OFFICERS IN REPORT

Petrograd, April 4.—More than $11,500,000 in bribes was paid by Germany to Russian commanders to surrender their positions and let through the German troops to quell the recent revolution, according to unofficial reports today of the new government's investigation of German corruption of Russian officers.

It is expected several men of high command will be tried and probably executed.

General Kurapatkin, Governor of Riga, it is said, received $3,000,000 to capitulate, but reported the attempted bribery and sent the money to the German Government. The German agent who paid over the money killed himself, it is reported, when he learned Riga would not be surrendered after all.

The investigation so far has found, it is said that $2,000,000 was paid to the commander at Libau and $1,500,000 to the commander at Mittau. It is alleged that the surrender of Kovono was paid for, but the price has not been named.

OBSTACLES.

The consciousness of power comes to us from conquering obstacles. Hindrances are, after all, our opportunities. God must regard our struggle. And that he has a great purpose in it all we are forced to believe from the way he gives us life, at some time in our lives, a battle to fight.—Roderick Stebbins.

Why Should They Not?
"Do you believe people can manage the referendum?" "Why not? Is it any harder than the other makers?"

SENATORS INSIST ON RIGHT TO TALK

Flood-Martin Resolution Will be Adopted, But Not Until Many Speeches Have Been Made—House to Take Matter up Thursday

9. Telegraph to The Freeman—Washington April 4.—Evidence that it would be late tonight or tomorrow before a vote will be reached on the Flood-Martin state of war resolution multiplied this afternoon as the senate debated the measure.

The great majority of the members favored the resolution and its passage was a foregone conclusion. But must of them wanted to be heard and to place the record before the country as supporting the president in a cause that they declared just.

The first speech in opposition came from Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, who declared that he opposed it and would vote against the resolution.

Senator Stone, chairman of the foreign relations committee, characterized the resolution as the greatest national blunder in our history and declared he would vote against it. It was not believed that on the first ballot more than eight votes would be cast against the resolution. Although Senator Mitchell had been expected to endeavor to prevent consideration of the resolution by filibustering, he did not do so.

In the house objections by Representatives King of Illinois and Comer of Wisconsin prevented Chairman Flood calling up the resolution which his committee had reported favorably by a vote of 17 to 2, and it was formally agreed that consideration of it will begin at ten o'clock tomorrow without any limitation of debate. This agreement was a disappointment to administration leaders as they had confidently planned to have the resolution approved by both houses before midnight tomorrow.

Patrol Instructions Issued.—The following notice has been sent to The Freeman for publication.

I wish to ask everyone to take our flag at sunrise and lower it at sunset and not let it touch the ground under any consideration. Raise it three times before flying and three times before lowering.

By order of MARGARET A. ANDERSON, Patriotic Instructor Ladies Auxiliary No. 2 of Tappan Camp 5 of V.F.W.

At First Dutch Church.

The following services will be held in the First Dutch Church this week. Dr. Leeper will speak tonight in the chapel. Thursday night the program service. Friday evening the King David by the best vocalists of the church. Sunday morning the auditorium. All are in vited.

ELLENVILLE

Ellenville April 4.—Peter Mitchell, son of Mr. Mitchell, spent Monday in Ellenville and interviewed several applicants for positions as waitresses and other help for the hotel. Many friends were glad to greet Mr. Mitchell.

Arthur Peiny of Middletown is spending several days in town looking after his property interests. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shepherd are to return to their home at Aurora, Ill., on Thursday after spending several months with Mrs. Shepherd's mother, Mrs. Jane Frear, on Church street.

Mrs. John Armstrong and daughter, the Misses Florence and Nedra, left for their home at Newburgh on Tuesday. Many friends regret the departure of this family from town who have spent many years in the village.

David Saffern of Littleton spent Sunday with Ellenville friends.

Miss Sadie M. Porter of Brooklyn is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Porter.

Mrs. Walter M. Brown will entertain the members of the Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. Church at her home on Warren street Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The members of the Standard Bazaar are to be entertained by Mrs. Little Powers at her home on Hudson street Saturday evening.

Several members of the Boy Scouts liked to Grahamsville on Sunday last to attend an entertainment given by the Boy Scouts at that place in the evening. They spent the night very royally on the hotel and hiked home on Sunday.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered on Easter Sunday morning at the Reformed Church by the pastor, the Rev. Walter S. Munn.

There will also be reception of new members on confirmation of faith on the same day. There will be a social service at the church on Sunday evening.

Upon the 4th of the Temple at the M. E. Church Sunday evening and the pastor, the Rev. W. H. Munn, delivered a very excellent sermon to a large congregation.

There will be no Easter services at the church but the Sunday school session will be held as usual.

Preparations are now going on for the concert to be given by the Ellenville Music Club. The public here have always accorded good music encouraging patronage. Musical recitals, the music of different periods, those taking part in the concert, the music of the last period. A program which combines poetry and music will be given. It is said that the music of the club is to give forth while music is being expressed and provide entertainment for all who attend.

Ellenville is certainly alive with patriotism. Old Glory is displayed in prominent places upon nearly all of the buildings. It is not quite all over business place and residence throughout the entire village. The Star Spangled Banner is kept flying continually and will be so for some time.

HOW TO START UP YOUR PLACE EARLY IN SPRING.—It would be well to look from time to time to the bulb beds or rows, the strawberry beds and other growths which were covered with straw early in the winter, to be sure the pests have not blown away. The pests freezing and thawing of a strawberry bed will almost certainly throw the plants out of the ground unless the bed has been carefully mulched while a few warm thawing days may cause tulips and other bulbs to send up shoots if not mulched.

Look out for rabbits in young orchards. Head them off by means of preventive measures if they have not already attacked the trees. If they have covered the wounds they have made in the bark with grafting wax or some kind of waterproof paint or even with mud thickly applied. As has been stated before now, a thick coat of whitewash to which has been added enough crude carbolic acid to give the mixture a strong odor will keep rabbits away and will also prevent injury by field mice. The acid in the mixture carried down the trunk of the trees by rain and impregnating the soil around the roots will also help materially to keep borers and other larval pests away from the trees.

One suburbanite keeping chickens on rather a large scale recently tried the experiment of furnishing the pullets in one colony house with warm water three times a day while the same number of pullets of the same age and breed in another colony house were given only cold water. Each house contained fifty pullets. Within ten days after beginning the experiment the pullets receiving the warm water were laying at the rate of more than 4 per cent the daily average number of eggs from the fifty pullets in the other house getting only cold water. There have never laid more than four or five eggs in any one day.

Exposed Water Pipes.—How to Keep Them From Freezing in Cold Weather.

Exposed water pipes are apt to freeze in winter causing much annoyance which may be prevented by covering them with the following mixture.

Take a solution of thin boiled starch and add sawdust until the mixture forms a thick paste. A fine sieve may be used to clear this sawdust from lumps.

It is first wrapped around the pipe, the turns about one inch thick. A one-quarter inch layer of the mixture is smeared on and allowed to dry. Then a second layer is put on and smoothed up. The string acts as an anchor to hold the coating to the pipe closely. White wash or paint may be used to give a finish for inside pipes but for outside work cover the coating with hot tar. If it is desired to have a very neat covering wrap the starch coating with cloth or canvas applying it in narrow strips like a bandage and painting the outside surface. An even coating of the starch is necessary when covering with cloth.

NEW DEATH TESTS.—How to Tell When Life Has Actually Ceased.

An Italian scientist describes the following three new methods of determining the cessation of life.

The first is the ether test. A drop of ether is instilled into the conjunctival sac of one eye. If this is followed by a reddening of the conjunctiva it affords proof that the circulation is intact and that life is still present. The other eye is used as a control.

The second test consists in the subcutaneous injection of fluorescein which if the individual is still living is soon followed by a yellowish coloring of the skin and mucous membrane of the mouth and particularly of the fringes of the tongue show this coloration most distinctly. A negative result is obtained in cases of marked slowing or enfeeblement of the circulation.

The third test consists in direct exploration of the heart by means of a cyst. This is introduced through a small incision in one of the intercostal spaces. Any movement in the heart is communicated to the cyst.

How to Walk and Grow Thin is the Main Question.

Here is a simple method to reduce weight which has been used with great success.

Rise early and take a half hour walk in the air walking a steady but alert walk. On returning home drink a cup of hot water with plenty of salt.

After a light breakfast leaving the table not quite satisfied take a hand working vacuum cleaner or carpet sweeper with a long handle and keep up a steady long reaching movement. It reduces the tops of the arms and removes the fat about the neck. Then take a dustier and dust the legs of chairs and stretch to the tops of doors to get a steady bending and stretching movement. The treatment takes about two hours a morning and by a continual eating and drinking of hot water, with salt during the day, one can obtain the desired result.

Under Nine Defeated.

The S. Joseph team defeated the Under Nine 12 to 6 in a basketball game Wednesday morning resulting in a score of 3 to 11. The batteries for S. Joseph were Joseph, catcher, Edward Gainer, pitcher, for Under Nine, Ben Shefel, catcher, George Schoonmaker, pitcher.

BRUSH FIRES KEEP FIREMEN BUSY

Eight calls for the fire department within twenty-four hours has kept the fire department busy. All of the alarms were caused by burning grass and brush and all except one were still alarms.

Tuesday's alarms were as follows: 1 25 p. m. (still alarm)—Grass fire at Third avenue and More street.

1 30 p. m. (still alarm)—Grass fire on West Chestnut street hill.

2 40 p. m. (box 91)—Grass fire on lot of Walter S. Darling in the rear of Lounsbury Place and Johnston avenue.

3 00 p. m. (still alarm)—Grass fire on Linderman avenue.

5 02 p. m. (still alarm)—Grass fire near Benedictine Sanitarium.

This morning's alarms were for grass fires at St. Mary's Cemetery and in the woods at the head of Gage street.

Only a slight breeze is necessary to cause grass fires to spread rapidly and to get beyond control. Property owners who are burning over their fields or brush lots are urged by the department to exercise the utmost care in starting such fires. The starting of fires by boys is unauthorized and fires started by boys will be followed by strict action.

"A FEW" DOESN'T MEAN LEGISLATURE

Mr. Mitchell's Endeavors to Twist Minor Mitchell's Mind into Submission to Legislature—Less in Meaning.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.—Albany April 4.—In an evident endeavor to make a statement credited to Minor Mitchell reflect against the entire state senate Attorney Samuel Untermyer at the closing of the morning session of the proceedings in the Wagner Mitchell controversy pointed down the major to the fact that he had said that the action of a few dumb fools may block the whole Jamaica Bay improvement scheme.

Minor Mitchell's statement in the legislature was not inquired of Mr. Untermyer.

Untermyer then asked the mayor if he had made any attempt to publicly declare that this statement had not been an attempt to insult the legislature and received the reply that he had not thought this necessary since he had told Senator Wagner on February 17 that he had not meant it as an insult.

The mayor declared upon cross examination that he thought the senators had made a mistake in not passing on a statement of this nature on account of their not understanding its purpose.

At 12 1/2 p. m. a recess was taken until 2 30 p. m.

ROOSEVELT OFFER NOT ACCEPTED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.—Washington April 4.—The offer of Col. Theodore Roosevelt to raise and command a division to be sent to the battle front in France cannot be accepted by the war department.

It was learned today that the only way in which the division could be accepted or through a special act of congress and otherwise there such a course would encourage politicians all over the country to seek similar honors to the great detriment of the army.

All members of the Clinton Guards are urged to be present at the funeral Thursday night as important business will come up at this time.

WEBSTER HEADS CORNELL ROSE

Well known Fire Company held Annual Meeting, Followed by a Banquet and Smoker Tuesday Evening.

Grove Webster, Sr. was re-elected president of Cornell Fire Company at the annual meeting held at the engine rooms on Tuesday evening and all of the other officers were re-elected as follows: Vice president, John T. Bond; secretary, Andrew J. Murphy; treasurer, Grove Webster, Jr.; foreman, Edgar Brett; heater, first assistant, Casper Ketterer; second assistant, Samuel Palmer; committee, Casper Ketterer and janitor, LaRue Weber.

The trustees elected were Edward Albert, Edward Weber and J. G. Hedman. Casper Ketterer was elected a delegate to the H. V. F. A. and John Arnold Sr. was elected delegate to the Kingston Fire Fund Association.

Following the business session a banquet was served and a smoker held. The company decided to give a dinner for the members and their wives in the near future.

The company at the present time is in a flourishing condition.

B. P. W. HAD BUSY AFTERNOON MEET

Daylight Saving Movement for Street Workers Approved—Increased Pay for Teams is Voted—Street Railway Company Must Get Permits Before Tearing Up Streets.

Tanks—not the kind on the battlefield but the source of supply for gasoline consumers—took up much of the time of the Board of Public Works at Tuesday afternoon's meeting. The matter first came up when the Hon. Joseph M. Fowler and Mr. Brown of the Brown Auto Supply Company of Clinton avenue asked for permission to erect two gasoline pumps on each side of Clinton avenue, one in front of the Brown store and the other diagonally across the street. Mayor Canfield and Commissioners Burgevin and Tammany discussed the possibility of the street becoming congested with cars waiting gas lined upon either side of the trolley track, and finally decided to grant a permit, revocable at the pleasure of the board, for both pumps. Connections will be made by driving a pipe under the street, the work to be supervised by the city engineer and street superintendent.

John Kinkaid asked permission to place a pump on the curb in front of 43 Hurley avenue and William Kemble sought one for the curb in front of 282 Wall street. Both applications were granted with the board reserving the right to revoke same.

Light on W. Chestnut Street. C. Rodman Still, assistant manager of the Kingston Gas and Electric Company asked the board to place definitely the location of an electric light to be placed at or near 29 West Chestnut street. Commissioner Burgevin wanted the location referred to John D. Schoonmaker and Judge John Van Etten but his colleagues delegated the matter to him to take up with lighting company and the property owners.

Complaints of Two Streets. Terry Heathers sent in a complaint regarding impassable conditions on First avenue between the Miller and Weishaupt properties and the street superintendent was directed to improve same. A complaint from the same company regarding a washout on Locust avenue, near Devil's Lake, was similarly disposed of.

Contracts for Cement. Walter S. Darling and Richard Tappan sent in acceptances of a contract for supplying concrete. Each will supply 1,100 bags at a price of $2.07 the coming season.

R. R. to Aid in Repairs. One of the railroad companies sharing in the expense of the Washington avenue viaduct maintenance reported that it had nothing to do with repairs to the approaches of roadway, that being up to the city. City Engineer Codwise reported a later conference at which the U. and D. railroad and the O. and W. had where cracks had appeared. The city will fill in the cracks at expansion joints with asphaltum, the street superintendent and city engineer being so directed by the board.

Trolley Company Criticized. Commissioner Tammany reported upon the tearing up of the Strand near the power house by the Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company, saying that the street was in a bad condition as a result and the trolley patrons were obliged to walk a considerable distance in order to get a fare. The work should have been done when the roadway was being built, he believed. Later a resolution was adopted that the railroad company must first notify the city and receive permission before it started work tearing up any streets. The company is placing ties in that section of the street improved last summer.

Daylight Saving Here. Daylight saving has hit Kingston. The street employees under the jurisdiction of the board, 55 in number, petitioned for a shift in the present working hours of from 8 to 5 to begin at 7 a. m. and quit at 4 p. m. On motion of Commissioner Tammany the petition was granted, the new schedule to take effect April 9th.

More Money for Horses. How the high cost of living has hit horses was shown in the next petition for an increase of pay for teams in the employ of the city. Grain and other horse feed is away up, the petitioners stated, and they asked that allowance be made therefor. The present scale is 53 25 for a single horse and $4.25 for a team. It was finally voted that the pay be increased to $3.50 for the single and $4.75 for the team, a boost of 25 cents per horse. The petitioners were: James Cramer, Ward Rowe, Emerick Schilling, Harry J. Healy, Joseph Wendland, Nicholas Bruck, Abram Weeks, Fred Sahloff, Bernard Fecney, Francis X. Fitzgerald, Joseph Schrowann, John Crook, Frank Lunters, Patrick Flanagan, Henry Melbert, Ernest Hicks and Frank Grant. The city at present employs 14 single and five teams with this force added to as the season for road work is fairly under way. The increase may mean in the neighborhood of $2,000. Most of the horses are employed for all but three months of the year.

Several Improvements. On motion of Commissioner Burgevin, it was voted to repair Center street from Clinton to Furnace, to place a catch basin at Maiden Lane and Green street; another at the southeast corner of Crown and John street; put two loads of crushed stone on Lucas avenue and place a crosswalk on the north side of Pine street over Greenhill avenue. The street superintendent was authorized to place a catch basin on Water street near St. Mary's street if he finds one necessary after investigation.

Bins for Crusher Plant. City Engineer Codwise was directed to prepare specifications for bins for crushed stone at the Wilbur plant, bids to be asked for construction of same at an early date as the city is in need of the No. 2 stone for which these bins are intended.

Garbage Collection Up. In the matter of the garbage collection a resolution was passed authorizing the street superintendent to issue permits for the same and also providing that applicants must all out blanks and provide covered, non-leaking carriers for sanitary handling of same.

Hurley Avenue Work. The matter of progress on the state highway contract covering Hurley avenue was acted upon, Secretary Linton being directed to write State Highway Commissioner Edwin Duffey asking that the contract be started on work as early as possible. The street is now torn up awaiting the laying of concrete.

SOUTH RONDOLET. South Rondout, April 4.—Our pastor preached his last sermon on Sunday. The morning theme was "Ideals." The text, "As for me I will behold the face in righteousness, I shall be satisfied when I awake in thy likeness." Psalms 17, 15. We all are influenced by our ideals for good or ill and our ideals are formed by association with some person who has impressed our fancy at former periods of life. Many boyish ideals are discarded as man comes to maturity and sense. Still unless we are careful to correct them often we will follow that which is to folly and ruin. The Jews who shouted "Hosanna" when Jesus rode into Jerusalem on that 87th Palm Sunday were dazzled by the ideal of a King Solomon and perceived not the lowly Jesus riding to sacrifice himself rather than to conquest on a war horse. The evening theme was "Slaying the Giants." The text was, "But Moses's hands were heavy and Aaron and Hur stayed his hands, the one on the one side and the other on the other side." Ex 17, 12. So we can all stay the hands of our president at this critical time, showing our true patriotism, and so we should all give our new pastor a very cordial welcome and support him faithfully in all his undertakings. There will be a business meeting
